Quincy Man Sued for $250,000 in Love Suit

ANDREWS FAVORS U.S. BEER SALES

R. R. BAKER SUED OVER 'PROMISE'

Reuben Rich Baker, wealthy Quincy resident and president of the well-known Baker Yacht Basin, Inc., was today made defendant in a $250,000 breach of promise suit brought in Federal Court by his former housekeeper, Mrs. Lyyle M. Ek.

Attachments on Baker's property in Barnstable and Norfolk were made by the office of the U. S. marshal. The writ was served on Mr. Baker at a hotel where he is living with his sister. His home is in Beach street, Quincy.

The defendant is nearly 50 years of age, while the plaintiff is 36, with a daughter in her teens.

According to the declaration the plaintiff was housekeeper for the defendant for some years, preceding and following his divorce. She claims that at various times he asked her to marry him and she was always ready to do so. In March of this year Mrs. Ek claims their relations became strained and then broken.

In addition to being head of the yacht basin which bears his name, Mr. Baker is a prominent yachtsman, well-known throughout Atlantic coast waters.

The plaintiff, who is also known by her maiden name of Lillian Wallin, is said to be a very attractive woman, well educated and refined. According to her counsel, J. Alfred Anderson of No. 101 Tremont street, the woman has a number of letters written her by Baker while he was on a vacation in Jamaica.

SOMERVILLE WOMAN VICTIM OF IODINE

Mrs. Lena Hinckley, twenty-five, of West Adams street, West Somerville, was taken to the Somerville Hospital today after drinking a glass of iodine. She will probably recover. According to the police, the Hinckleys have not been living together.

DRY CZAR WOULD FIGHT RUM WITH LIGHT DRINK; TELLS OF 'STILL CRAZE'

Washington, April 14—General Lincoln C. Andrews, who for a year has wrestled with the job of enforcing prohibition, created a sensation at the Capitol today when he frankly told the Senate prohibition committee that he favored a system of governmental control and sale of beer as an aid in enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment.

The Dry Czar said he favored sale of beer as an aid to temperance as well as prohibition enforcement.

"It would be helpful in would be an aid to enforcement if a non-intoxicating beverage like beer could be sold and distributed by the government, without having a return of the saloon!" Senator Reed (D.), Missouri, asked Andrews.

"It probably would be an aid to law enforcement," Andrews replied, "but the means of the government controlling distribution would be vital."

General Andrews endorsed as a part of his plan the sale of beer in restaurants and hotels in connection with the serving of meals. He did not approve sale of beer in other

COURT FORBIDS CHASE TO BLOCK 'HATRACK'

"Hatrack" hung up another victory over J. Frank Chase and the Watch and Ward Society today, this time in Federal Court.

Judge James M. Morton issued a temporary injunction against Mr. Chase and the society, restraining them from interfering with the circulation and sale of the April number of the American Mercury Magazine which contains the article.

The injunction forbids interference by threats and intimidation to disrupting corporations and retailers.

The injunction, it was ordered, will hold good also for future issues of the magazine, pending disposition of the litigation now in progress.

Sale of the magazine was halted a couple of weeks ago through letters sent out to distributors by the Watch and Ward, threatening arrest if the April number was sold on stands.

THREATS ILLEGAL.

"May an unofficial organization," queried John Morton, "activated by a sincere desire to benefit the public and to strengthen the administration of the law, carry out its purpose by threatening with criminal prosecution those who deal in magazines which it regards as illegal, the effect being, as a practical matter, to exclude such magazines from sale through ordinary channels, and thereby to inflict loss upon their proprietors?

"The injury to the persons affected does not flow from any judgment of a court or public body; it is caused by the defendants' notice which rests on the defendants' judgment.

"The defendants know the influence of these notices of prosecution, and trade upon it. They secure their influence by coercion and intimidation of the trade through fear of prosecution if the defendants' views are disregarded.

"In my judgement this is clearly illegal."

"The fact that the defendants are actuated by no commercial mo

How Two Chinamen Died Beside the Deep Pecos He Watches His Sheep The Traveller Wonders

(Copyright, 1926, by The Star Company)

THIS IS WRITTEN on the Sunset Limited over the Southern Pacific, through train to the coast. The statement, "There is no better train," is justified. Leaving New Orleans at noon, the train runs through Louisiana rice fields and sugar cane fields, and then, all night and all day through gigantic Texas. The dining car captain says, "Somehow, there seems to be more land down here than by the Northern route." There is a great deal of land. You could scatter a few New England States along this railroad track and not crowd anybody. Not to say Texas is not to know what a big country this is. It is like going to the zoo and missing the elephant.

WHAT TENS OF MILLIONS will live here in future years when flying machines will do in one hour what this train does in ten, when water is controlled and these miles and miles of land, brought under intensive cultivation, produce food enough for all the people on earth? Over-population? We have not started to populate, and if that be birth-control treason, let the eugenists make the most of it. But we need to spread the population and take care of the mother.

JUST NOW the train passes Del Rio, and on the left

TWO HUB ARMY FLIERS NEAR DEATH IN CRASH

Two army fliers from the Boston airport narrowly escaped death or serious injury today when they were obliged to make a forced landing on the beach at Point Allerton.

Captain Robert Raymond was piloting the plane, with Lieutenant E. Lyons as observer. The plane turned over on its back on the beach and was considerably damaged. Neither man was injured.

BRISTLING BAYONETS AGAIN BRING PEACE INTO "BLOODY STREETS', OF HERRIN, ILLINOIS

Militiamen going on patrol in the heart of Herrin's business district. These troops are typical of the soldiery rushed into the city today as a result of the fatal clash between Klansmen and anti-Klansmen over yesterday's election. With the arrival of these guardsmen order was soon restored at the point of levelled bayonets. The troops will stay until danger of fresh outbreak is ended.

Another scene in the streets of Herrin while the city is under its periodical reign of martial law. Photo shows troops at "rearease" following a hectic day policing the hostile town. These troops were sent to the city during the recent factional strikes which have earned for the county, of which Herrin is the central spot, the title of "Bloody Williamson."

Warlike scenes again focus the public eye on Herrin, Ill., as a result of latest Klan battle that cost six lives. Here's a company of Illinois guardsmen as they look, equipped for action, while on duty in the troubled city. They are shown cleaning rifles preparatory to resuming their patrol of "Herrin's bloody streets."

Machine guns bristling on strategic corners over prove an effective cure to the warlike tendencies of the rival Herrin factions. In past outbreaks these weapons have played a big part in restoring peace in the community. They are back on the job again today.

ANDREWS FAVORS BEER AS WEAPON AGAINST RUM

places, except direct to consumers in their homes.

The plan outlined by Andrews closely followed the Quebec system so far as it relates to beer. In Quebec, however, hard liquors are sold in bottle at a time at governmental retail stores.

Pressed for an answer on their use of wine, Andrews declined to commit himself.

AGAINST OPEN SALOON.

"If it was distributed by the government under regulation, to be sold in saloons, public places or drunk on the premises, the people would take to drinking that substitute beer instead of the vile liquors now sold," said Reed. "You think the sale of such beer would be an aid to temperance and would aid you in suppressing bootlegging?"

"I do believe it," the dry czar said firmly.

"You also believe that if there were open saloons, for the sale of beer and wines, that might be used as a cover by which proprietors could ship their customers illicit whiskey?" Reed asked, "and that would increase your difficulties?"

"I think so," replied Andrews. "It would be disastrous."

Andrews also shocked dry members of the committee by declaring his agents were unable to capture more than "one in ten" of the private stills now being operated in the homes of American citizens.

He declared he had instituted a new policy, however, of making his men concentrate on "big game" instead of on home brewers.

Andrews declared the day of invading homes without search warrants was passed.

SMASHING RAIDS OVER.

"Has the day passed when prohibition agents, without warrants, can break down the doors of private dwellings with axes, hold up people with guns and make arrests?" asked Reed. "Has that day really passed?

"I hope so," said Andrews.

"I think so," Reed said.

"I want to restore respect for the Federal law," Andrews added. "I thought we could accomplish that first by showing a respect for the law ourselves and by sticking close to the law."

"You couldn't restore respect for the law unless that respect had been impaired or destroyed by the policies of your predecessor could it?" asked Reed.

"I didn't mean that," said Andrews. "I meant conditions have brought a disrespect for the law."

SPYING ERA PASSES.

"Yes, and the policies of your predecessor were partly responsible for those conditions," said Reed.

Andrews advocated sale of beer after he had been questioned at length about stills in private homes. Reed asked him repeatedly about his "snooping, spying agents, who smell around cellars, look under windows and peep through keyholes."

That type of enforcement, Andrews declared, has gone.

"How many private family stills do you capture?" asked Reed. "Is it one in fifty?"

"I can't make an estimate," the dry czar replied.

"Is it your opinion then that you get only one in ten of these stills?"

"Well, yes," Andrews admitted.

"Then having captured 172,000 stills last year," Reed added, "there were 1,720,000 stills in this country last year."

Andrews did not reply.

STILL IS IN EVIDENCE.

Reed questioned Andrews about the method of making home brew liquors.

"It's simpler than making bread," said Reed.

"I believe it," Andrews assented.

Then Reed explained to Andrews and the Andrews how to manufacture home brew liquor. A big copper still, lent to the committee by Andrews, was pointed to in his explanation.

"Tell us what you mean by a commercial still," Reed asked.

"It's one used to make liquor which is to be sold and not kept for home consumption," said Andrews.

"There is a tremendous number of small stills in private homes which you never learn about because you don't have the organization to capture them?" interjected Julian Codman of Boston, counsel for the wets.

BOSTON "DRUNK" DATA.

"Yes," Andrews replied.

"Those stills might be used to make millions of liquor?"

"That might be true and may be true, too," Andrews replied.

In the course of one of his lessons in distilling, Senator Reed called on Charles Williams, custodian of seized stills for the treasury, to help explain the intricacies of the process.

The average still will produce 40 gallons of liquor a day, Williams said. Senator Reed then figured out that there were 1,720,000 stills operating last year, with a production of 68,800,000 gallons of "moonshine" a day.

Asked if it would not take 50,000 men to enforce prohibition, Williams disagreed, saying his solution was a tightening up of the law and the making of illicit liquor a penal offense.

"You would put a man in jail for selling a glass of beer" the senator asked.

Again Williams nodded.

"Let's get your nods into the record," said Reed, and that was done.

"Do you not think it would be a greater crime to take a man from his family and put him in prison stripes in a penitentiary than it would be for him to sell a glass of beer?"

"No, I don't agree with that."

CURE WORSE THAN CRIME.

"I just wanted to see how case-hardened you were," said Reed. "I think it is time the people of this country understood that a law can be more criminal than the crime it contains."

When General Andrews said his offices used men of the "underworld" as informants, not as agents, Senator Reed asked whether some agents are not ex-convicts.

"Yes, but they lied when they answered questions," Andrews said.

"When you employ a man of the underworld doesn't he go on the payroll?"

"No, we pay him for information."

This line of questioning resulted from a recent statement by Prohibition Administrator Porter Field of Ohio and Michigan that there was no reason why ex-crooks should not be employed as dry agents if they have turned over a new leaf.

"That gives a wrong impression of our policy," General Andrews said.

Senator Reed pressed for information whether dry agents can build homes without search warrants.

"An officer doesn't need a warrant to go into a place for a murderer," put in Senator Harrold, Republican, Oklahoma.

"But there's a difference between a felony and a misdemeanor," replied Senator Reed.

"Then why not make it a felony?" said Harrold.

"Why not get out the old Magna Charta and the Constitution and burn them both?" retorted Reed.

Codman then returned to the "wet scenery" came to be in the committee room.

"We had a witness yesterday, a Catholic priest, here, who told us there are hundreds of small stills, just like the one you so kindly lent me, in the homes of his parishioners."

TROOPS GUARD HERRIN; 6 DIE IN KLAN WAR

this country the name of "Bloody Williamson."

An order placing the city under martial law will be issued at the first threat of more trouble.

In the morgue are the bodies of six men, victims of the battle fought in the streets during the election yesterday. Four other men lie seriously wounded in hospitals.

The feudists are of two factions, Klansmen and Anti-Klansmen. After a truce of fourteen months, yesterday's disturbance broke with a suddenness that rocked the city.

The trouble started at the polls. The race for sheriff has been unusually bitter, each faction trying to elect the man who would be partial to its side. When John Smith, alleged leader of the Klan forces, challenged a number of votes, an anti-Klan precinct worker struck Smith in the face. A fight ensued, but was quelled by local authorities.

One citizen, sensing the danger of the situation, summoned Major Robert Davis of the National Guard, who had been detailed to keep an eye on the troublesome county. Davis surveyed the town and reported it quiet.

An hour later Smith was shot as he stood in front of his garage. He was wounded but crawled to the garage and barricaded the door. A few minutes later four men with a machine gun mounted in their automobile drove by and riddled the garage with bullets. They then drove out of town.

Major Davis summoned Guardsmen from Carbondale, moving them into Herrin in trucks, and posted them about the Smith garage. The raiders entered the town from the opposite side. They drove past the Masonic Temple, a polling place, in front of which a number of Klansmen were gathered.

A volley of shots were fired into the crowd. Three men fell, mortally wounded. Their companions opened fire on the raiders and two of them fell from the car, dead. Another was mortally wounded.

OLD DAVY JONES GETS 750 CASES RUM; BOAT SINKS

Fall River, April 14.—Rhode Island State police and Federal agents seized a motorboat laden with 750 cases of whiskey today, off Tiverton, but lost their prize while towing it to shore. The whiskey-laden boat struck a rock and sank quickly.

The seizure was made following a tip that that motorboat loaded with liquor was anchored off shore. The rum boat was found abandoned.

While headed for the dock off the Sinclair Oil Company, the boat sank. Efforts will probably be made to raise the sunken craft.

$100,000 LOSS IN FALL RIVER CHURCH FIRE

Fall River, April 14.—A fire that threatened to repeat the devastation of 1916, when Fall River was swept, destroyed the Baptist Temple in South Main street early today and resulted in injury to three firemen.

The loss is estimated at $100,000 by fire officials.

Several other firemen narrowly escaped injury when a wooden cupola toppled from the church. Captain James Dallagher of Engine 7, battling the flames inside the building, received the full force of the blow and was rendered unconscious.

Lieutenant Henry Shea and Firepairs Fred Burke of Ladder 7 were struck on the head by falling timbers a short time later. All three men were taken to St. Anne's Hospital. Because the firemen were unable to "spot" the cause of the blaze that raked the two-story brick structure, the police set about an investigation of their own.

Mother and 2 Children Saved at Springfield Fire

Springfield, April 14.—A mother and her two children were rescued after being overcome by smoke, and twenty other persons were driven to the street when fire of suspicious origin destroyed the rooming house, No. 188 North Main street, today.

The rescued woman was Mrs. William Cody, mother of two children, one and two years old. She was carried to safety by John Caragoun of No. 14 Pomona street.

An investigation of the fire, which was started in two places, was ordered after Deputy Fire Chief Graves reported that it appeared to have been the work of an incendiary.

GIRL IS HIT BY WAGON; WOMAN STRICKEN

A girl was struck and injured today by a bread wagon in Scollay Square while at about the same time an unidentified woman was stricken with a cerebral hemorrhage and collapsed in the Scollay Square Subway.

Marion Miggison, twenty, of No. 24 Sprague street, Revere, was taken to Relief Hospital with an injured left ankle and left knee after she had been struck by the bread wagon. The victim of cerebral hemorrhage is about 45 years old and well dressed. Her condition is critical at the Relief Hospital.

NEW SUSPECT IN DEATH OF WIFE SOUGHT

New Bedford, April 14.—Contents of the stomach of Mrs. Ilene Deschamps, whose body was found on the roadside between this city and Fairhaven, were sent to Harvard Medical School for analysis today, while police were searching for a man said to have entertained the woman until a late hour on the night before her remains were discovered.

Medical Examiner Daniel O'Brien completed his autopsy and announced that he could not make a definite report until the analysis had been made.

He said he did not find any evidence of violence or alcoholic poisoning, and, aside from the stomach, all indications were of death from natural causes.

The police continued their intensive search for men known to have been Mrs. Deschamps' companions frequently, and especially for the man believed to have been with her on Monday night in a house in North Fairhaven. This man was sought today in Fall River, New Bedford and Fairhaven.

Sounds of a heated argument between this man and Mrs. Deschamps were heard emanating from a house in Coggeshall street, according to Special Officer John E. Maynard who refused to divulge the source of the information.

The man was described by Maynard as living not far from the spot where the body of the woman was found. Maynard said police have information that the two were together on this afternoon and until 9:30 that night, leaving the house after the argument.

WILL BE QUESTIONED.

At the man's home, the authorities said, they learned he had left Tuesday morning, saying he was going to Fall River. The man will be ing to Fall River.

While Medical Examiner O'Brien performed an autopsy on the body, Frank Deschamps, husband of the dead woman, was on his way here from Newport, R. I., after informing the police by telephone that he and his wife have been virtually separated for the last six months.

Deschamps said, according to the police, that he last saw her three weeks ago, when he once more pleaded with her to forsake her companions in Fall River and return home for the sake of their children. A sister is now taking care of the children.

CALLED "GUTTERSNIPE," SAYS EXPERT'S WIFE

Mrs. Harriett E. Preston, of Arlington, who was called "a crazy guttersnipe" by her husband, according to testimony in Middlesex Probate Court today was granted a divorce decree from Frank M. Preston, Boston efficiency expert.

As deposition made by her mother, Mrs. Martha Churchill, Florida, told of the epithet flung at Mrs. Preston by her husband. Mrs. Preston told Judge Harris of being thrown against a wall and beaten and of being kicked out of bed in Baltimore, on which occasion she left Preston and never dared return to him, she said.

Preston did not contest. The couple were married November 15, 1920, in Nashua, North Carolina, and lived in Brookline and Arlington.

HITS DEER, SMASHES AUTO INTO STONE WALL

Nashua, N. H. April 14 (A.P.)—Snapping on the brakes of his car when the headlights revealed a full sized deer directly in front, W. J. Comiers samshed the machine against the wall with considerable damage, but not until the front of the auto had hit the deer and knocked it down. The deer bounded away up the street into the woods.

FUGITIVE IS CAPTURED ON VISIT TO SWEETHEART

John J. Howard, twenty-two, an inmate of the Concord Reformatory, who escaped from the Eye and Ear Infirmary while undergoing treatment was captured in Roxbury by Sergeant Donovan of Division 10 while on the way to see his sweetheart. Howard, serving a six-year sentence for burglary, had finished half his term.

RESCUE WOMAN AND 2 GIRLS IN REVERE

A mother and her two daughters were rescued over a ladder while the father and son fled by the stairway early today during a two-alarm fire in the three-story double frame tenement house at Nos. 601 to 603 Beach street, Revere.

The fire necessitated sounding of two alarms and the summoning of extra apparatus from Chelsea.

Only one family, that of Hyman Block, owner of the building, was at home when the fire started. The topfloor is vacant and the family of Nathan Boris, on the street floor, was away.

Mrs. Lena Block and her daughters, Esther, eighteen, and Marion, eleven, were rescued over the ladders, while the fifteen-year-old son, Joseph, fled by the stairs with his father.

The rescued, nearly overcome and blinded by smoke, were taken into the homes of neighbors to be given care. They were chilled from exposure to the night air and were furnished with warm clothing.

Patrolman McKinley and McLaughlin, Revere police department, ran through the houses to do rescue work. Some tenements were found to be empty, and families that did live in the house, were already out of the place.

Samuel Habelow, of Walnut avenue, Revere, a passerby, who discovered the fire, saw smoke belching furiously from the lower floor windows when he chanced by and turned in the alarm.

The second alarm was sounded on arrival of apparatus from the Waldron street station, only a block away. Central Station men came on the second, and a piece from Chelsea pulled in shortly afterwards.

Early morning street car service along Beach street was tied up until the blaze came under control. Fire loss, estimated as heavy, was confined to the lower part of the house.

BLAME NUMBER OF BANKS FOR FAILURES

Washington, April 14 (I.N.S.)—The unusually large number of bank failures in the country during 1924 and 1925, a period in which the country as a whole was riding on a wave of prosperity, was attributed by the Federal Reserve Board today to the section where the failures occurred being "overbanked."

A total of 1,389 banks, involving deposits of about $386,344,000, went to the wall in the two-year period, 612 of the failures falling in 1925.

In New England and the East, where most of the country's banking wealth is located, there were only 21 bank failures, with deposits of $14,748,000. In these two districts, there is one bank to 7,300 population.

In the Middle West and Western States, where there is one bank to 800 population in North and South Dakota and 2,000 population in Missouri and Oklahoma, 1,063 failures occurred involving deposits of $232,000,000.

New England States led the nation in the solvency of their banking operations, only three failures having occurred in that district with deposits of $2,900,000.

Eighteen Eastern State banks, with deposits of $10,845,000 collapsed while on the Pacific Coast there were fifty-three failures with $15,-164,000 deposits.

Ninety-six per cent. of the failures were in towns of less than 25,000 population.

Retail Potato Prices Boosted to $1.25 a Peck

'MA' AND FAMILY

INA CLAIRE TOLD TO 'PAY $5000 OR DIE'

Ina Claire, actress, has received a letter which threatened her life if she failed to pay $5,000 to "Joe Klutys." She is reported to be on the verge of prostration.

BUYERS ARE WARNED OF SHORTAGE

Western and Southern Buyers Grabbing Maine Supply at Fancy Rates

Potato prices are on the rise again and householders were urged today, both in Boston and Worcester, to cut down on potato consumption to combat the soaring rates.

Since a week ago the price has jumped 10 cents a peck universally until now, at various Hub stores the housewife is paying from $1.10 the chain store price) to $1.25 a peck.

According to one produce manager for a chain store, potato buyers from the West and South are grabbing most of the supply in Maine and are giving fancy prices.

PASS OUT OF N. E.

Fifty cars of potatoes a day are passing through Boston on their way out of New England, he declared, and a shortage has been created.

"The outsiders are getting all the potatoes while we are not getting any," declared the produce manager "and the only way the housewife can combat the high prices is to reduce home consumption.

"If potatoes are used only once or twice a week, price per peck will be brought down to fifty cent retail.

Mrs. "Peaches" Browning and the healthy girl she is the "mother" of by marriage to the millionaire of 52. Mrs. "Peaches" is 15. Dot, Browning's adopted daughter, is 11, and in school.

'DADDY' IS FATHER TO HER, TOO, IS CLAIM

Says Browning Hasn't Showered Her With Gifts, But He Has Promised to Do So

New York, April 14.—The circumstances surrounding her marriage to Edward W. Browning, millionaire realtor, more than three times her age, are revealed here for the first time as related exclusively to the Evening Journal by "Peaches" Heenan Browning.

"The world at large is criticising me as the girl who 'sold herself to a rich old man.' That is an infamous lie," she said.

"I married 'Daddy' Browning, not for his wealth, but to have a home and babies. I married him because he is as crazy about me as I am about him.

"And I know I'll not regret my step, because we're growing to love each other more and more dearly every day.

NO COSTLY GIFTS—YET.

"He combines, for me, all the sterling qualities of a father and a husband. That's more than most women have. He's amiable, sympathetic, understanding—a good companion.

"He didn't have to lure me with costly gifts, as many suppose. I haven't received a thing from 'Daddy,' aside from the simple gold band wedding ring I wear.

"Of course, he has promised me all sorts of things—a beautiful foreign speedster, all for myself, and a diamond engagement ring, such as I've always craved, and a set of furs, which I may select myself—oh, everything.

"He's going to take me to Europe, as soon as I get well and he can arrange his business affairs. We're going to stay there a long time and see all the strange lands I have traveled over in fancy since I learned to read.

SHE WANTS BABIES.

"And when we come back we're going to settle down somewhere in the country, and I'm going to make a home for him.

"I know I'm young now—barely more than a child myself, but I have a woman's instincts, and I want a family—babies—as soon as it is practicable.

"I want to be a home-wife, devoted to my husband and his welfare. I want to sew for him, mend for him, cook and bake for him, wash and scrub for him, if need be.

"I want to minister to his every want, to soothe him when he is ill or depressed, to drive away his loneliness.

"That's what appealed to me in him first—the dismal solitariness of his existence. He seemed so pathetically lonely my heart was touched.

BROWNING WEEPS.

"The ordeal through which I was passing was unnerving me—the pain of my acid burns, the constant prying into my affairs, the distressing notoriety, the silly court action against mamma. I was on the verge of collapse and my doctor told me a change of atmosphere was imperative. He advised me to go to the country for rest and solitude.

"I told 'Daddy' what the doctor had said and he was visibly affected.

"'I shan't let you go away by yourself and leave me,' he said, and there were big tears in his eyes. 'I want you with me always.'

"Then he suggested that we get married at once so that we might have a honeymoon together. I loved him too well to think of answering anything but 'Yes.'

"I wasn't able to sleep nights before that. The room in which I was attacked gave me the horrors. I was glad to get away, especially when I could have 'Daddy' with me.

"I've always been a home girl—this talk of my fondness for the wild life of the cabarets and night clubs is all bosh. When 'Daddy' proposed to me I knew I was attaining my lifelong ambition."

Cardinal Officiates at Niece's Wedding

In a ceremony performed by Wil[illegible]ham, Cardinal O'Connell, who also celebrated the nuptial mass, Miss Anna O'Connell of Chestnut Hill, niece of the Cardinal, became the bride today of Dr. John Godwin Downing of Beacon street.

The wedding took place in St. Mary's Chapel, Boston College, Following the mass, there was a reception at No. 107 Walnut Hill road, home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. O'Connell, at which only members of the immediate families of the bride and bridegroom were present.

Dr. and Mrs. Downing left on a honeymoon trip to Bermuda. They will sail from New York on Saturday and return about the middle of May.

Cardinal O'Connell was assisted by his secretary the Rt. Rev. Monsigner Richard J. Haberlin, Chancellor of the Archdiocese of Boston.

Also assisting the Cardinal was Rt. Rev. Mgr. M. J. Splaine, D. D., I. P. P., of St. Joseph's Church, Roxbury.

The bride was given away by her father.

Sisters of the bride attended her. Mrs. Mary L. Ryan was matron of honor, and Mrs. Edward A. McLaughlin, Jr., and Miss Josephine O'Connell, bridesmaids. Harry Downing, brother of Dr. Downing was best man.

The ushers were Daniel J. Lyne, Edward A. McLaughlin, Jr., Thomas Hopkins, Joseph F. Conway, Dr. Edward L. Cummings of Washington, and Joseph E. O'Connell, a brother of the bride.

Among those present at the ceremony were the Very Rev. James H. Dolan, S. J., president of Boston College, and other members of the college faculty; Rev. Neil A. Cronin, Ph. D., administrator of the Cathedral of the Holy Cross; Rev. Daniel I. Cronin, S. J., of St. Mary's Church, North End; Rev. James B. Cronin of St. Catherine's Church, Somerville, and Rev. Timothy J. O'Connor of SS. Peter and Paul Church, South Boston.

The wedding march and other music was played by Miss Catherine Curtin, organist at the Sacred Heart Church, Newton Center.

The bride wore lower-colored taffeta and tulle and carried a bouquet of orange blossoms and lily of the valley. The matron of honor was dressed in gray, and the bridesmaids, Mrs. McLaughlin, Jr., and Miss Josephine O'Connell, were blue and pink, respectively. The matron of honor and bridesmaids carried bouquets of roses and lilies of the valley.

New York, April 14 (I.N.S.)— Edsel Ford sailed today on the Aquitania with Mrs. Ford for a vacation of several months.

DOCTOR'S WIFE FOUND GUILTY AFTER RAID

Mrs. Irene Savage, wife of a Bad Boy acolitist, and Ole J. Seel of Somerville were found guilty on serious charges today in Roxbury district court, and each was given a suspended sentence of six months in the House of Correction.

Dr. Rose Savage, husband of the woman, who led a raid on a Kilmarnock street apartment where his wife was arrested with Seel on March 2, was in the courthouse corridor but took no part in a long conference which resulted in the court's finding.

Sentence was suspended for a period of two years, during which time Mrs. Savage and Seel are on probation.

Mrs. Savage, who is thirty-three years old, has a suit for divorce pending against her husband, whom she charges with cruel and abusive treatment. Their children have been cared for a time since the couple became estranged.

B. & M. PLANS TO CUT EXPENSES, PAY DIVIDEND

Stockholders of the Boston & Maine Railroad, at the annual meeting in North Station today, were told by Homer Loring, chairman of the executive committee, that officials intend to put the road in a position to pay dividends, through reorganization.

He said the B. & M. had been starved for money for improvements for many years, and every railroad needs money for improvements at all times.

CREDIT DESTROYED.

"The road's credit was pretty much destroyed during the 15 years previous to 1925," said Mr. Loring, "due to government control and other causes with which stockholders are familiar. We are extending the bonds of $42,000,000 to give the road a chance to build up its credit. We are trying to clear the debts so that the company will have enough money to pay dividends.

"We have about $18,000,000 in cash now. Of this amount $5,000,000 or $6,000,000 will be required for working capital. We must reduce the operating expenses of the road and we must give better service if we are going to increase earnings. The Boston & Maine is going to do all it can to make Northern New England grow."

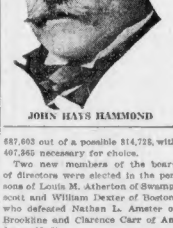
The reorganization policy of the road was overwhelmingly endorsed, when the regular slate of directors was elected by an unusual vote of 587,603 out of a possible 814,728, with 407,365 necessary for choice.

Two new members of the board of directors were elected in the persons of Louis M. Atherton of Swampscott and William Dexter of Boston, who defeated Nathan L. Amster of Brookline and Clarence Carr of Andover, N. H.

VERMONT MAN GRATEFUL.

Scott M. Farnum of Lydonville, Vt., said he felt grateful to the management of the road for what it had accomplished. N. L. Amster declared the plan of readjustment was unique in the history of corporate finance, and that he was not in favor of "roping at this plan the way they are doing it."

No Don'ts in John Hays Hammond Age Recipe



JOHN HAYS HAMMOND

New York, April 14 (I.N.S.)

—John Hays Hammond, 72, returned from Europe today with a recipe for sliding gracefully through old age.

"I sleep when I like, eat when I like, drink when I like and work like the devil," said the famous mining engineer.

He didn't indicate what he drank.

BILL TO CUT 'L' DIVIDEND IS DEFEATED

Acting upon the recommendation of its Committee on Ways and Means, the House today killed the bill to extend for thirty years the Boston Elevated public control act and to reduce dividends on common stock from 6 to 5 per cent.

Representative Henry L. Shattuck of Boston declared the need of additional capital which was first set at $20,000,000 and later reduced to $6,000,000 on a ten and five-year basis in 1924 as pressing as had been supposed.

He said Winthrop Coffin, a public trustee of the Elevated, had advised the legislature to go slow on capital investments for the next year or two, partly because of the introduction of the bus, which has already caused the abandonment of some 15 miles of trackage.

"Until the share of the bus in our transportation system can be more accurately foretold," he said, "investments in rolling stock, surface lines, power plants and shops should be made only with the utmost caution."

He showed that there has been a substantial improvement in the financial situation of the company. For the year ended December 31, 1925, he said, the balance sheet indicated bank loans were reduced from $5,200,000 to $2,800,000.

"Let us permit the present fixed terms of public control to run its course," he pleaded.

"We shall then be in a better position to determine the policy to be pursued, whether to return to private management, a further extension of public control, or public ownership."

MORE COLD WEATHER! KEEP HOME FIRES GOING

Another cold wave, or an intensification of the present spell of weather, bringing below freezing temperatures, was promised by the weather man today.

Sweeping from the vicinity of Medicine Hat, where weather is made, the cold waves is expected to reach Western Massachusetts tonight and Greater Boston tomorrow.

Citizens are advised to order more coal, fill automobile radiators with alcohol, and keep on the heavy underwear, with the probability that real Spring will not make it appearance before June, if then.

ENOUGH EVE FRUIT TO BAN "A DOCTOR A DAY"

Chicago, April 14 (A.P.).—Eve herself, the original apple woman, would be puzzled about what to do with all the apples now in sight.

Reports today from the government Bureau of Agricultural Economics show that the national supply of apples in cold storage is 44 per cent. above the total a year ago, and is 30 per cent. above the average of the last five years.

City wholesale prices of apples are fully one-third below the 1925 levels and shipments are double the volume. Nevertheless dealers are in doubt whether apples on hand will not yet be in active competition with the new Summer crop.

CARMEN AGREE ON PAY RAISE

Employes of the Middlesex & Boston Street Railway Company, comprising Division 600, Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employes, today voted to accept the raise of 2 cents per hour offered by the company.

The decision was reached after considerable discussion during which it was pointed out that in the past questions submitted to arbitration were settled unsatisfactorily to the employes.

The old agreement, which carried a 60-cent-an-hour wage rate, expired December 31.

'I SAY! WHERE'S THOSE BALLY KIDNAPERS?'

Little ten-year-old Lord Townsend of England, who is being guarded against kidnapers. Here he is ready to defend himself if the bold, bad men show up. Inset is his mother.

Raynham Park, Norfolk, England, April 14. (A.P.).—The closest guard is being kept over ten-year-old Lord Townshend, owner of one of the largest estates in England, as a result of a report by the Marchioness to Scotland Yard that she had received several letters threatening that the boy would be kidnaped unless £24,000 were paid to a charitable institution.

Detectives are investigating the source of the letters. Meanwhile the little lord is being kept indoors. Today he was given a brief outing in a covered motor van on the estate, accompanied by trusty guards.

The youngster has not been informed of the circumstances. He is wondering what all the commotion is about and has expressed himself as "fed up" with the restrictions on his liberty.

SHE SHOT RIVAL FOR $50, SAYS MOTHER OF 5

Testifying against Sabatino Troisi, on trial for first degree murder, Mrs. Rosina Candia told dramatically today in Suffolk Superior Court how she shot and killed Troisi's common law wife, declaring she did so at Troisi's command.

Troisi gave her $50 and a pistol, and said, "This will be a holiday for you," according to Mrs. Candia, who is 25 years old and the mother of five children.

She testified she was also told by Troisi that his wife was after her with a gun and was going to shoot her. The killing for which Troisi is on trial took place in front of a butcher shop in Cottage street, East Boston, on March 26 1925. Mrs. Candia is charged with second degree murder.

"He was accustomed to come to my house once a day because I was keeping some alcohol of his in my cellar," testified the woman. "The night before Mrs. Troisi died I went to a vacant lot with him and he told me his wife was after me and would shoot me.

"The next morning I met Troisi as I was leaving my house and he told me she was coming with a gun. He gave me a pistol and said: 'If you don't take this I'll have a feast,' meaning that it would be my end. When I hesitated he gave me $50 and said it would be a holiday for me."

She said she "went off her head" and did not know what she did, but she remembered firing the shots and also remembered Troisi told her afterwards to go away.

Two Killed in Plane

Washington, April 14 (I.N.S.).—Sergeants Neil W. Abbott, pilot, and Clarence B. Mix, passenger, both of the marine corps, were killed today when their plane crashed at Cumnor, Va., the navy department was advised this afternoon. The accident occurred as the men were flying from Quantico to Hampton Roads.

STATE POLICE TELEGRAPH TO CHECK CRIME

A police telegraph system over the State for checking automobile thefts and other crimes, will be advocated by the Boston police department at a conference of State police chiefs.

Every police chief in the State will be invited. Inspector Thomas A. Sheehan of the stolen auto department of Boston police and Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson will represent Boston.

The aim of the conference is to establish quick communication between the cities and towns of the State, especially within a radius of 25 miles of Boston.

The rapidly increasing number of autos make it obligatory, officials say, that a more rapid method of communication be established. Telephone service, police find, is too slow, and while calls are being made criminals escape.

The plan calls for the installation of sentry boxes along the main highway, with a motorcycle policeman understanding telegraphy stationed at each one. The boxes would connect directly with police headquarters.

HUB'S SHERLOCK HOLMES RUNS AFOUL OF DOG

Call for Dr. Watson!

Sherlock Holmes was badly bitten today by a dog in Hammond street, Roxbury. He is at the City Hospital. The fiendish canine, which may have been the Hound of the Baskervilles, leaped at Sherlock, sinking his teeth into his body. In justice to the famous criminologist it should be said that this is another Sherlock Holmes, of Davenport street, Roxbury. He is only seven years old. His father, Phelps S. Holmes, is a porter at the South Station. Sherlock was on his way to school. Health authorities are investigating.

PRICE M'KINNEY OHIO STEEL KING DIES A SUICIDE

Cleveland, April 14 (A.P.)—Price McKinney, sixty-three, millionaire, who for sixteen years headed the McKinney Steel Company, committed suicide by shooting at his home near here.

McKinney, one of the biggest industrial figures in Ohio, was born at Hamilton, Ohio, and spent almost his entire life building up large steel industries at Toledo and Cleveland.

He owned extensive gold and silver mines in Mexico and was rated many times a millionaire. His holdings alone in the steel company amounted to $20,000,000.

He retired as president of the McKay Steel Company last May and since then led a retired life. Recently he suffered an attack of influenza.

McKinney was found in the bathroom of his home by a butler with a bullet wound through his head, a pistol in his hand.

His death was a shock to the city's industrial world.

GIRLS SHARE CIGAR STRIKE BENEFIT

Miss Lucy Caylde (at left) and Miss Philomena Heymiwich, cigar makers, who were among those paid $4 to $8 each from the weekly $10,000 strike fund at headquarters, No. 11 Appleton street, today.

CIGAR STRIKERS PAID $10,000

Twelve hundred members of the Cigarmakers Union, who went on strike last week for an increase in wages, received their first strike benefit today, when $10,000 was distributed at the union's headquarters, No. 11 Appleton street, South End.

President Thomas F. Green and Financial Secretary Edward Van Poppel withdrew the money from the bank and were escorted to the distributing point by the riot squad from station 6, East Dedham street.

Three hundred of those on strike are girls. They were given preference in the line that formed at the pay window. The first to receive the benefit was Mrs. Mary Van Danleghen, a cigarmaker. Each cigarmaker received $8 and each stripper $4.

President Green said that the union would continue to pay each week $10,000 to members while the strike lasted. He said that he was pleased with the loyalty of the members and predicted victory.

NURSES TO GIVE DANCE TO RAISE BED FUNDS

A benefit dance to raise funds for a bed for graduate nurses at the Forest Hills Hospital will be given on April 28 under the auspices of the Forest Hills Hospital Alumnae Association, Inc., at the Washington Irving School, Poplar street, Roslindale. Morey Pearl's orchestra will play. The committee in charge includes Dorothy McCray (chairman), the Misses Sullivan, Higgins, Wedge and Mason.

CIVIC LEADERS WILL ATTEND K. C. BANQUET

Cardinal O'Connell, United States Senator Clarence C. Dill of Washington, Governor Fuller, Mayor Nichols, and several of the supreme officers of the Knights of Columbus will be the guests at the annual dinner of the Massachusetts State Council, Knights of Columbus, at the Copley-Plaza on Monday evening, April 19. The State deputies of other jurisdictions in New England and other prominent officials also will attend.

The dinner, which has been held on Patriots' Day for years, is one of the events of the year in Knights of Columbus circles, and one of the principal observances in this city of the battles of Concord and Lexington. It attracts representative members of the order from all sections of the Commonwealth. Nearly 1,000 are expected.

A reception will be tendered the guests from 5:30 to 6, the dinner beginning promptly at the latter hour.

State Deputy Edmund J. Brandon will be the toastmaster. State Secretary John E. Swift is chairman of the general committee. The other committee chairmen are: J. Philip O'Connell, reception; William B. Bell of Springfield, host; District Deputy Edward A. Hurley of Back Bay Council, entertainment; District Deputy Hugh J. Mackin of North End Council, decorations; Louis B. Connelly of Mt. Benedict Council, speakers; District Deputy Harold A. Field of Dorchester, souvenirs; William F. Riley of Belmont Council, publicity.

CAR HITS TWO; ONE IS DEAD

One man died today at Massachusetts General Hospital, and another was slightly injured when struck by an automobile in Park street, Stoughton.

The dead man is Thomas McCormack of Atherton street, Stoughton. Richard Kelliher of Clinton street, West Stoughton, is suffering from cuts and bruises at the hospital.

Both men sustained fractured skulls and multiple injuries when struck by an automobile owned and operated by Edward Connors of Bird street, Stoughton, Connors told the police he was going about 20 miles an hour, toward Brockton, but did not see the men who were walking by the side of the road toward Stoughton square.

The men were taken to the office of Dr. E. H. Ewing in Walnut avenue and later removed to the Massachusetts General Hospital.

The proceeds will be given to the building fund of the Aristos Club.

SAWYER OPPOSES WARE RIVER PLAN FOR WATER

The taking of the North Ware River to augment the water supply of Worcester and the metropolitan district, part of the so-called Gow plan, was condemned today by Representative Roland D. Sawyer of Ware in a letter to the Legislative Committee on Metropolitan Affairs. Sawyer produced figures to show that the cost to the metropolitan district by 1946 under the Gow plan would be $70,182,000, while under the Goodnough plan it would be only $53,132,000. The cost to Worcester under the former plan he put at $3,026,000 and only $6,767,000 under the Goodnough scheme.

'TED' COY ACQUITTED OF DRUNK CHARGES

New York, April 14 (I.N.S.).—Edward H. (Ted) Coy, former Yale football star and husband of Jeanie Eagles, well-known actress, was discharged in court today following his arrest on the charge of being drunk and disorderly. Coy, who said he was a writer living in Yorktown, N. Y., pleaded that he was suffering from a cold and sore throat and could not have used "boisterous" language as charged.

MEXICO MAY TRY BISHOP, PRIEST

México City, April 14 (A.P.)—The Department of the Interior officially announces that it has invited the Right Rev. George J. Caruana, apostolic delegate to Mexico and the Antilles, who is an American citizen, to appear at the Department of the Interior and show his passport with the purpose of determining whether he entered Mexico lawfully.

If irregularities are discovered the prelate will be requested to leave the country.

The department also announces that the bishop of Huejutla, Mgr. Jose Manrique Zarate, has been cited for an investigation by the Attorney-General because of a recent pastoral letter which is considered objectionable by the government and also because of the bishop having notified the State Legislature that he declined to accept the limitations placed on Catholic priests.

It is added by the department that if the investigation justifies, charges will be made in the Federal Court and the bishop will be tried.

MT. AETNA MOST CROWDED PLACE IN WHOLE WORLD

Catania, Sicily, April 14 (A.P.)—The slopes of Mount Aetna, famous volcano, are more thickly populated than any other region in the world, according to surveyors of the Volcanological institute of the university here.

On each of the 800 habitable square miles an average of 800 persons reside.

JUDGE CALLS AUTO 'DAMNATION OF COUNTRY'

Clarksburg, W. Va., April 14 (A.P.)—The automobile is the "damnation of this country," declared Judge W. E. Baker in sentencing Pearl Liberger of Morgantown, mother of a three-months-old child, to pay a fine of $100, and ordered confiscated the automobile in which the woman is said to have transported liquor.

YOUTH HIT BY AUTO AS HE LEAVES STREET CAR

As he alighted from a street car at Massachusetts avenue and Boylston street, today, Carl Anderson, seventeen, of No. 241 Boylston street, Brookline, was struck and seriously injured by an automobile operated by George Kalazdan of Highland avenue, Newton Upper Falls. He was taken to City Hospital, suffering from multiple cuts and bruises.

PASTOR ILL, HIS CASE PUT OFF

A severe attack of neuritis prevented Rev. Guy Willis Holmes, ousted pastor of the Pleasant Street Methodist Episcopal Church, New Bedford, from appearing in Suffolk County Superior Court today for arraignment on charges of serious offenses and violation of the true-naming law.

The pastor, whose alleged friendship for Antoinette Fortin, teen-age waitress, led to his expulsion from the Methodist Episcopal conference, and also to his indictment here, is ill at the home of his father-in-law, E. H. Jenkins, in North Kingston.

TESTIMONIAL DINNER FOR NEW COUNCILOR

City Councilor Michael J. Mahoney of South Boston, winner in the recent special election in Ward Six, will be the guest of honor at a testimonial dinney by the Flood Square Associates at the Municipal Building on the evening of April 21. Daniel E. Collins and John W. Ryan head a large committee handling the plans.

STORY CHANGED BY BUTLER, IS CHARGED

Marine Barracks, San Diego, Cal., April 14 (Universal)—Fighting at the side of their deposed commander, Colonel Alexander S. Williams, army officers of the famous Fourth Regiment of Marines returned the first opened by Brigadier-General Smedley Darlington Butler and bombarded his "cocktail" party charges with denials.

Perhaps most startling of all the testimony brought before the court was offered by Captain George F. Stokes, regimental adjutant, who disclosed before the general board a "behind the scenes" glimpse of how General Butler prepared the accusations on which Colonel Williams now is being tried.

Captain Stokes declared, when an attempt was being made to impeach his statements, that General Butler personally had rejected his first written version of the "cocktail" episode and ordered him to write one to meet his requirements.

Captain Stokes said he felt no effects from drinking "four or five" of the drinks served, and gave it as his opinion the accused officer was not under the influence of liquor.

Major Russell H. Davis, base quartermaster, described the "cocktails" as merely a sweet potion of fruit juice, and said he did not see Colonel Williams either drinking or eating during the party.

"Did the drink contain any alcohol?" he was asked.

"It did not," was his emphatic reply.

Major John L. Doxey also proved a strong defense witness.

WOMAN VOWS O'HARA TOOK $50 'BRIBE'

Vasce Admitted Being Go-Between in Revere Rum Plot, Say Witnesses

Thomas J. O'Hara, former Revere police lieutenant, offered a Revere woman storekeeper liquor-selling protection at $25 a week, she testified today in Superior Court before Judge Sisk and a jury.

O'Hara went on trial with Frank Vasce of Revere, charged with conspiring to sell intoxicating liquors. O'Hara is charged also with acceptance of a bribe.

Mrs. Stella Ciangolo, formerly Stella Stanilford, was indicted jointly with them, but pleaded guilty and turned State's evidence.

Mrs. Giangolo testified she opened a restaurant in Revere in March, 1925, and talked with Vasce, who later informed her he had talked with O'Hara about the sale of liquor.

Mrs. Giangolo said that in an interview with O'Hara he told her Vasce was paying $35 a week and offered her a similar opportunity.

She turned over a check for $51.94 drawn on the banking house of Hornblower & Weeks and made payable to her husband, she said, but later she was raided and convicted both in the Municipal Court of Chelsea and in the Superior Court for Suffolk County.

On cross-examination Mrs. Giangolo testified that she began to sell "something stronger than beer" after she had discussed liquor selling with Lieutenant O'Hara.

Cornelius Ahern of the Revere Board of Health testified he attended a conference with Mayor Walsh and William L. O'Brien at O'Brien's home, No. 300 Beach street, Revere, where Vasce was summoned.

Witness testified that Mayor Walsh said to Vasce:

"Frank, there has been a story going round about you and Lieutenant O'Hara that troubles me. It was brought to my attention that Mr. O'Hara, whom I appointed to head the liquor squad, has been receiving graft from a certain person.

"I understand you were the go-between. I cannot really believe that such a thing does exist in our city. Mr. O'Brien has called you here because he says he does not believe you would be a party to such a thing. Is it true or not?"

Ahern testified, and O'Brien corroborated him later in testimony, that Vasce hesitated at the question, then answered slowly to the Mayor that it was true and that he had cashed a check and had given O'Hara $50. The check, he said, was for $51.94 and came from Stella Stanilford, now Mrs. Ciangolo.

FACILITIES

From a modest two-story shop, the Continental Motors factory has developed during the growing years of the automotive industry to the largest plant in the world devoted to the exclusive manufacture of gasoline motors.

In Muskegon, Michigan and in Detroit, the two Continental plants occupy a combined site of 75 acres. Beneath the roofs of these buildings are housed the most remarkable mechanical equipment in the whole world of technical manufacture.

Within this great institution is every facility for creative work and every type of effective equipment for following through to the completed product.

These facilities have enabled Continental to produce to date a total unit output of more than 2,750,000 Motors, all proved by practical performance and all bearing the Red Seal trade mark, Continental's mark of the master motor builder.

DODGE SALES UP 100 PER CENT.

Sales of Dodge Brothers cars have increased 100 per cent. during the Spring, according to C. S. Henshaw, Boston Dodge dealer.

He says: "Not only locally but also nationally, the public is emphatically showing its preference for our type of car, which is being sought by every type of buyer.

"The unusual record made by Dodge Brothers motor cars as official transportation units of the United States army in France and this country is further recognized in the purchase of 51 touring cars for use of the army in this country and of 21 units by the Panama Canal Commission for use in the Canal Zone.

"Approximately 50,000 Dodge Brothers cars were in the service during the war. Only a motor car of unusual sturdiness could withstand such usage.

"Many of these cars were assigned to training camps in this country and hundreds are still on active duty. The recently purchased cars are additions to such fleets.

ARGYLL ENGINE IN SEVERE TEST

The efficiency of the Continental-Argyll single sleeve valve engine was stressed recently by H. E. Ricardo, inventor of the Ricardo Head and an eminent internal combustion engineer, in a paper read before the London Graduates' section of the Institution of Automobile Engineers.

In discussing high speed engines Mr. Ricardo said, "Wear is very much reduced and lubrication facilitated when the cylinder walls actually move as is virtually the case in a sleeve valve engine. A test of an Argyll single sleeve valve engine showed no measurable wear after 1200 hours running at high speeds. In a normal engine the wear would amount to about three-thousands of an inch in similar circumstances."

Agent Dies at Post

Marlboro, April 14.—Eugene O. Brigham, 70, for 40 years B. & M. station agent here, died in his office from heart attack.

In 70 days 1,000 new Stutz cars were produced, establishing a factory record. Standing in front of the car from reader's left, are Benjamin Twyman, engineer consultant; W. K. Swigert, production manager; President F. E. Moskovics, and Vice-President E. S. Gorrell.

MANY BRAKES USELESS, SAYS GOODWIN

Half of Trucks and 15 Per Cent. of Passenger Cars Badly Equipped

Half the trucks in Massachusetts and 15 per cent. of the passenger automobiles are equipped with brakes that are practically useless, declared Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin today, speaking before the Rotary Club at the Boston City Club.

"Dollars are more important than lives," said the registrar, as he rebuked the Legislature for refusing to give him additional inspectors for testing lights and brake equipment.

223 ON DEATH ROLL.

"Hundreds of children and grown people are dead who would now be alive if the brakes had stopped the automobiles just a little sooner," he said. "In the past ten days there have been four children and one grown person killed by automobiles which were not properly equipped with brakes.

"Of the 233 persons killed last year in the State almost 90 per cent. were killed in the cities and thickly settled parts of towns. In such localities it is absolutely necessary for brakes to be in good condition so quick stops can be made.

AUTO INCOME.

"Last year the income from automobiles in the State was $9,735,576, and this year there will be an increase of at least $3,500,000 due to the changes in fees. Last year, $575,246 was taken in by the courts in automobile fines and $300,282 was taken from applicants for licenses and examination fees.

"All except what it cost to run the motor vehicle division is used for building more roads. It would only cost $27,446 for the rest of this year to put 20 more men on equipment inspection work, and yet the committee on ways and means refused to allow me one man.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Old Grads to Cast Critical Eye on Hasty Pudding Rehearsal Tonight

MISS ELIZABETH SPRAGUE, a clever horsewoman of the younger set, is entered in the Hunt Team Class at the New Riding Club's Indoor Invitation Show, starting this evening.

TONIGHT IS "OLD GRADS" Night at the Hasty Pudding Club in Cambridge. The night when former members of Harvard's justly famous club return to the fold as friendly critics, is the night when the club's current stage production (this year titled "1776"), goes on for a glorified dress rehearsal before its first public performances.

IT'S A WELL ESTABLISHED custom, this, of having former members return Cambridge-way to sup informally at the cheery club-house, to revamp the show a bit, if necessary, here and there, and then send it on its merry way to sundry waiting audiences.

THIS YEAR'S show is by all odds the most pretentious of many Springs. "A play with music," so club members emphasize, and not a musical comedy. Colonial, of course, harking back to Cambridge when the Washington Elm first figured in history, and ladies wore crinolines.

PERIWIGGED GALLANTS—the handsomest youths the Pudding boasts—have masculine parts, and to Scott Wilson, litsom and delectable "girl," goes, of course, the feminine lead, a role giving that clever young man full scope for his terpsichorean talents.

AS TO THE PLOT, if any, of "1776," the Pudding men take a leaf from the book of their friendly rivals, the Vincent Club members, and veil the story of "1776" in deep, dark secrecy. Which, very naturally, increases anticipation ten-fold.

OF COURSE, it's a clever thing from first to final curtain. Pudding Shows have a way of being that, with interpolated specialties, brilliantly executed, to cast an almost professional glamour.

THIS SEASON the Cambridge thespians have in view a most pretentious itinerary, and after two public performances at the club-house, on Thursday and Friday evenings, they depart for Northampton and points West.

BUFFALO, DETROIT, Cleveland and Pittsburgh are included in the swing, everywhere the Pudding performers to be greeted and royally entertained by local Harvard clubs and groups of old graduates.

RETURNING TO their home bailiwick, they share the Hollis Street Theatre the last week of April with the Vincent Club. Their legion of admirers will be out in force, to applaud and enjoy this latest addition to Pudding successes.

WHILE HARDLY a blade of grass hereabouts shows its Spring-time green and polo fields are untenanted, plans for brilliant matches and tournaments already are arranged, with Princemere scheduled for spirited part therein.

MEADOW BROOK, in September, is naturally Mecca for the high-handicapped players. Early within this category come Frederick H. Prince, Jr., of the Princemere team, at One; Harry East, at Two; Lord Wodehouse, at Three, and Wing Commander Wise, at Four.

AND SPEAKING again of polo, Gould Shaw, son of Robert Gould Shaw, 2d (formerly one of the finest polo players in the United States), now secretary of the Pinehurst Polo Club, is an enthusiast of the first water.

WHICH IS NOT at all to be marvelled at, considering that his pater played Number Two on that famous Myopia team, otherwise composed of Augustus ("Gussie") Gardner, at One; Mr. Agassiz, at Three, and Mr. Fay, at Back.

IN THOSE DAYS Dedham was an aspirant for high polo honors, led by the dashing Allan Pernes. Now the younger Shaw, emulating his father's successes with the mallet, is showing all the earmarks of a splendid player.

MR. AND MRS. SAMUEL POWELL of Providence and East Greenwich have been Newport guests for a few days, putting up at the cheery La Farge Cottage in Touro Park. Mrs. Powell was formerly a Boston girl, the one-time Elga Powell.

CARDS FOR the marriage of Miss Louise King, daughter of the Herbert Thorn Kings of Tuxedo Park, New York, to Kenneth Shaw-Safe have found their way to various Newport addresses, as well as smart Boston and New York residences.

APRIL 24 is the date, and a smart company will be in attendance. The fiancee has recently been in Newport, as hostess guest of Mrs. T. Shaw-Safe and Kenneth Shaw-Safe, at their villa, "Ocean Lawn." The best man for the wedding is a Bostonian, John P. Monks of Commonwealth avenue.

SEA SERVICE FOR SUNKEN TITANIC

U. S. Cutter on Iceberg Patrol Pays Annual Tribute to 1,517 Dead

By Associated Press.

In the wind-tossed seas that edge the danger-fraught banks of Newfoundland, the Coast Guard cutter Modoc paid its annual tribute to the dead of the Titanic.

A wireless message yesterday to the Associated Press told the story of that picturesque service on the quarterdeck of the fearless little cutter.

Above the national ensign, whipped by a cheerless Arctic breeze, flew the Church pennant, in silent testimony to the solemnity of the occasion. Officers and crew stood at attention. A radio silence was unbroken by ships in the vicinity. In another moment there came the crash of a triple salvo from the cutter's firing squad and the ceremony was over.

The Modoc turned once more to lonely tasks of the international ice patrol, a quest for great bergs that annually sweep down the Labrador current, menacing the fog-blanketed steamship lanes.

In the 14 years that have passed since the White Star liner crashed into a floating ice mountain and went to the bottom with 1,517 passengers and crew the patrol has been in force.

Two United States cutters, the Tampa and the Modoc, hold to their task in storm and fog. Steamers piying the traffic lanes wireless helpful information and this is correlated and broadcast by the cutters as long as ice remains.

BAKER WARD DEFENDS HIS $8,000,000 STOCK DEAL

New York, April 14 (A.P.).—W. B. Ward, baking magnate, who has been accused by a group of stockholders of the General Baking Corporation, which he organized, of using more than $8,000,000 of the company's funds to finance stock dealings, today replied that there was nothing hidden or concealed about the transaction and that it was of benefit to the corporation. By taking over more than 100,000 shares of Class A stock the General Baking Corporation would put idle cash to work and save nearly $600,000 a year in dividends, Mr. Ward asserted.

Ford Gives Lie to Claim Burbank Was an Infidel

Queen Victoria's letters reveal her alarm that Prussia will stir war in Europe. This picture is of Her Majesty Augusta, Queen of Prussia.

The Polish differences with Germany which played havoc with the recent Locarno pact, and threatens the League of Nations, was a bugbear to Queen Victoria of Great Britain in 1863, as revealed in today's installment of "The Letters of Queen Victoria," which the Boston Evening American is publishing daily with the permission and approval of King George of England.

Proposals respecting Poland alarmed the great Queen, and filled her mind with the fear of her country being involved in a war with Germany, possibly a premonition of the holocaust which took place half a hundred years later.

While manifesting a remarkably keen insight into the intricacies of world politics, Queen Victoria was nevertheless first and foremost a mother, as her letters and extracts from her diary show. She did not believe that the Prince of Wales should attend many public functions because of his youth, although he was about to be married.

OSBORNE, 8th Feb., 1863.—The Queen has received Lord Russell's letter informing her of the formal offer of the Greek Crown to our son, Prince Alfred, and she approves of the intended answer. It should be couched in very civil terms, for it is a high compliment paid to our child, which the Queen cannot but believe is chiefly owing to the respect and admiration for our beloved great Prince, and to the confidence entertained in the education which such a father must have given to his children. The Queen would wish some allusion to this fact to be introduced into the answer.

The Queen much regrets that her brother, the Duke of Coburg, should have finally declined the Crown, but feared that the state would never consent to his retaining the Duchies and accepting a foreign Crown.

Hub Man Settles Suit Over Shoes for $493,000

Following a conference at the bench between Judge James M. Morton of Federal district court and counsel, a settlement in favor of the plaintiff for $493,000 without costs was made today in the civil suit brought by F. Howard White of Boston against the Nemours Trading Corporation of Delaware.

The suit for $1,500,000 was for alleged breach of contract, the plaintiff claiming that the defendant corporation failed to accept and pay him for several hundreds pairs of shoes together with shoe findings and fittings of great value.

NEW HOPE FOR COURT FOES

Smith's Victory in Illinois to Be Followed by Drive on Lenroot

Washington, April 14 (I.N.S.).—Senator William B. McKinley's defeat at the hands of Colonel Frank Smith in a primary fight in which McKinley's vote for the World Court was the only outstanding issue, made a deep impression upon the leaders here, and foes of the court announced that it means the pursuance of a vigorous campaign to take the United States out of the court.

Speculation was rife concerning the probable fate of Senator Lenroot. The La Follette organization in Wisconsin is hot after Lenroot and irreconcilable speakers will invade Wisconsin just as they invaded Illinois.

ANTI-COURT VICTORY.

Friends of the court ascribed McKinley's defeat principally to the bitterness of the Republican factional struggle in Illinois for control of Cook County.

"Personally," said Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, "I like Senator McKinley. But from the standpoint of the country, I consider the result in Illinois a tremendous victory for the old doctrine of nationalism as opposed to internationalism.

"McKinley was pulled in by State, and his defeat was due solely to his vote for the World Court. It appears that every time the people get a chance they add a reservation concerning foreign entanglements. They reserve the right to refuse any man who forsakes our traditional policy of nationalism and pursues the will-o'-the-wisp of internationalism.

HOPE FOR BRENNAN.

"I believe on a square-cut issue, the people would vote 10 to 1 in favor of our old policy of staying at home and minding our own business and insisting that Europe stay at home and mind its business."

Democratic leaders were speculating today on the possibility of George Brennan, the Democratic "boss" of Chicago, defeating Smith in November.

As between Smith and Brennan the issue will not be the court, but prohibition. The Anti-Saloon League has indorsed Smith, and Brennan is running on a "wringing wet" platform.

Springfield, Ill., April 14 (I.N.S.)—With 3,580 of the 5,989 precincts in Illinois accounted for, Colonel Frank L. Smith was leading Senator William B. McKinley, political opponent for the Republican nomination for the United States Senate, by 65,154 votes. Smith had 441,912 and McKinley 372,758.

MATCHMAKING FOR SONS

ALWAYS the old matchmaking question! "Give a dog a bad name——" etc. I am supposed to be an ardent, ambitious and wily matchmaker. I have heard it so often that I turn weary and perhaps a little sick at the many twistings and interpretations of my intentions and acts.

If we could only look into each others' minds, how little harsh judgment there would be in this world! Many a "selfish ambition" would then show up as altruism; many a "cruelty" would be seen as utmost kindness.

Judgments are never fair unless all the facts are known.

Let me illustrate the situation like this: You know how badly - mixed mortar crumbles, letting the stones fall apart, destroying your building and rendering all your previous work useless.

A leader, a builder, a statesman, a king, must see that all things in his work fit together, compose a whole. He has to take care that no one element is destructive or of bad quality. This is not because he is a schemer, a Machiavellian intriguer. But because he must weigh all things, look ahead, as all good builders should do, or his construction will not stand, and the construction of a country is a basic undertaking, making all other building possible.

If at the head of a country there is a royal family and the country recognizes its utility, it is the King's duty to see that no dissolving element enters.

In our case the family was united, happy and honored until, through our eldest son, dissolving elements entered into it—women, who had solely their own ends in view which they coated with the name "true love" so as to deceive the public.

No one is a greater respecter of "true love" than I. But it must be TRUE, and the woman who loves a man truly, does not destroy him. The first passion of love dies down and if you have not built it on a firm basis of common understanding, mutual interests and ideals, it crumbles away and leaves but ruins.

Is it possible, therefore, that parents who are anxious for the future of their sons, who know they are part of the edifice they are building—is it possible, I say, that they should not try to direct their affections toward those loves which, while bringing them happiness, yet not destroy the great work?

Young people fall but too easily in love. It is but a natural event, and surely parents who try to bring the right sort of young people together instead of the wrong ones, cannot be termed "ambitious schemers."

Must we not all be very cautious in our judgments of others, for how CAN we know what lies at the bottom of each man's act?

FULLER SIGNS 'CRIME' BILL

Governor Fuller today signed one more anti-crime bill. It directs district attorneys to move for sentence not less than seven days after a plea of guilty, or a verdict of guilty, in cases of felony not punishable by death, or in which no question has been raised for decision of the Supreme Court.

Other bills signed by the Governor were:

Providing that buses used exclusively for the transportation of school children or church goers not be required to pay the full registration per seat.

Increasing the requirements of training and experience necessary to obtain an undertaker's permit.

SAYS STRIKER WAS SLAIN

Washington, April 14, (A.P.).—A plea for prompt action by the Senate Manufacturers Committee on the La Follette resolution for senatorial investigation of the Passaic textile strike was presented to the committee today by Miss Pauline Clark, representing the strikers.

Passaic, N. J., April 14 (A.P.).—Death today of Frank Gido, a textile striker of Garfield, was said, by the United Front Committee of Textile Workers, to be from a severe beating Gido was alleged to have received yesterday afternoon, when a crowd of strikers attempted to break into Belmont Park, Garfield.

Mill representatives denied the charge, asserting that Gido died from natural causes.

BELIEVED IN SOUL, SAYS AUTO KING

Declares He Knew Plant Wizard Too Well to Think He Doubted Infinity

Detroit, April 14 (A.P.).—While the body of Luther Burbank was being laid to rest at Santa Rosa today, Henry Ford defended his friend against charges of infidelism.

Luther Burbank, Mr. Ford said, was not a disbeliever in the permanence of human spirit and was not an infidel. His statement of his religious views, Mr. Ford added, "was either grossly misunderstood or misquoted by the press."

"I knew him well," Mr. Ford said. "I visited him often and frequently talked with him about the life of plants, of flowers and of the entities that go to make up our world and ourselves.

"And I know positively that there was in Luther Burbank a beautiful and abiding faith in the permanence of that which lives now, whatever form it may take, here or hereafter, and whatever function it may perform in the vast and wonderful world of matter. He believed that no life was ever lost.

"If he could not indorse the particular conception of the Deity and of the human spirit which some others held, it was perhaps because he had thought more deeply than some others had, or had approached the problem from a different angle. But he certainly was not an infidel in the sense of denying the ruling intelligence and power of things. I think that his faith was as great and firm that he did not feel the need of being overpositive about things he could not scientifically prove.

"Luther Burbank believed in the permanence of life, defins life in whatever terms you will. His whole life was concerned with directing the living principle in things into new, more useful and beautiful forms.

Santa Rosa, Cal., April 14 (A.P.).—Just as the last ray of the setting sun brightened for a moment the flowers in the gardens of Santa Rosa, Luther Burbank will go to his final rest today, borne by old and trusted friends to a quiet grave under a Lebanon cedar he planted many years ago.

A strange mixture of agnosticism and religion tinctures the sentiment of those who will gather to mourn this friend, for friends from far and near thronged here when they heard of his death, but only his widow, his sister and a few close friends will be permitted to witness the final scene.

All are invited to public services among the living monuments to his memory in the trees and flowers of Doyle Park, but Burbank, unostentatious in life, preferred that his burial be clothed with simplicity.

There will be no long procession no requiem music. At the public exercises 3,000 school children will sing. The Rev. C. S. S. Dutton of San Francisco, who married Mr. and Mrs. Burbank ten years ago, will represent the church of which Burbank was a member but an admitted critic.

Lured from Home

Isabella Strachan, 13, of No. 1196 Tremont street, Roxbury, who is believed to have been lured from home by older girls.

HUB'S CASH FOR TOLEDO HARBOR

Washington, April 14 (I.N.S.).—Toledo Harbor is to get $465,000 worth of improvements at the expense of San Francisco and Boston harbors, the War Department announced today. The sum is to be realloted from the following river and harbor authorizations:

San Francisco, $50,000; Oakland Harbor, $75,000; San Pablo Bay and Mare Island Straights, $75,000; Humboldt Harbor and Bay, Calif., $200,000, and Boston Harbor, $115,000.

'BRIGHTEST PUPIL,' 13, VANISHES

Roxbury Child, Attired in New Clothes, Seen Once Since Disappearance

The "brightest girl in the Comins School" at Roxbury Crossing was reported missing today to the police and they began a search of several houses in the Egleston square section of Jamaica Plain.

For more than a week, 13-year-old Isabella Strachan has been away from her home at No. 1196 Tremont street, Roxbury, and she has been seen once in Egleston square with an outfit of clothing entirely different from the clothes in which she vanished on April 6.

Report of the girl's absence was made at police headquarters by her mother, Mrs. Isabella Strachan, who said the girl was in the eighth grade and was called by the teachers the brightest girl in the school.

No reason for the schoolgirl's vanishing could be assigned by the mother except that she may have fallen under the influence of older girls who have persuaded her to stay away from home.

According to the mother, young Isabella when seen last Sunday in Egleston square by a friend, was with two older and well-dressed girls, and Isabella's garb did not include the suede jacket, the dark green wool dress and the jockey type hat she wore when she disappeared more than a week ago.

On information furnished by Mrs. Strachan, special police were detailed to search several houses in the vicinity of Egleston square in an attempt to locate the girl.

Do You Ever Wash Your Eyes?

(The Windows of Your Soul)

The most important organ of the body. The least appreciated. The eyes are constantly receiving dust, dirt and germs of disease from the Street. People would not have red, sore, inflamed eyes and lids if the eyes were taken care of.

Before it is too late bathe your eyes at least once a day with a good antiseptic, healing, cleansing eye bath.

CHILD AID BILL A MODEL, SAYS HUB WOMAN

Marion A. Wilson

House bill 7,669, which provides Federal aid in the District of Columbia for dependent children in their homes, was praised today by Miss Marion A. Wilson, vice-president of the Order of Patriot Dames of the United States at the Boston headquarters.

"The measure is a long step forward in child welfare work," said Miss Wilson. "I sincerely hope that the United States Senate will pass it as did the lower branch, and that every State in the Union will follow suit. It ought to be a national law.

"I believe in the bill because I am convinced that it is better to keep the family intact than to scatter children around different institutions.

"A mother whose children are taken from her loses courage and becomes crestfallen and often a mental wreck. Her domestic instincts and inspirations are crushed.

MOVIES JOIN IN OLD PLAYS REVIVAL

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor.

Los Angeles, April 14.—There seems to be an unconscious but concerted movement to educate the public into the age old theory that old treasures are best.

The Fox Company started the ball rolling with "East Lynne" and now comes news that Warners will produce "The Heart of Maryland." "The Heart of Maryland," dear readers, is that high powered Belasco melodrama which brought the red haired Mrs. Leslie Carter from comparative obscurity into the theatrical limelight.

The Warners have definitely decided now to star Dolores Costello and "The Heart of Maryland" is being considered for her debutante vehicle.

She will not be ready for her first starring vehicle until he finishes "Manon Lescaut" which is now only in its third week of production.

What a chance the girls are going to have to do homage to a new matinee idol when Gene Tunney begins work next week. I lunched at the Rudolph Valentino studio and Tunney, the light heavyweight champion, was one of the guests.

Tunney will play the hero in a serial to be made at the old First Arts Studio, where once D. W. Griffith held sway.

Richard Barthelmess is leaving today for a trip into the wilderness that will take him away from the haunts of men and give him an opportunity to rest until he is ready to begin work on "The Amateur Gentleman," to be filmed under the direction of Sidney Olcott.

I suspect some of my playmates in New York are trying to make me hungry. Yesterday I received a bundle of menus collected at a dinner given Laura La Plante at the Russian Swan. When Miss La Plante returns to California she will play the leading feminine role in "Butterflies on the Run."

BORAH MOVES FOR RADIO BOARD OF 3 U. S. MEMBERS

Washington, April 14. (A.P.).—A new radio bill under which radio communications would be placed under control of a national commission of three persons appointed by the President has been introduced in Senator Borah.

The bill would divide the United States into five radio zones and the commission would have power to issue and suspend licenses for causes. Appeal could be taken fro mits decision to the courts of appeals of the District of Columbia. The measure would reaffirm the applicability to radio of the anti-trust laws and the Federal Trade Commission act.

"Too Tired to Move"

HOW often we hear a woman use this expression! She is in a weakened and run-down condition, not fit to do her work. Bravely she struggles on. She becomes nervous and discouraged.

Whether she lives in a luxurious apartment, a cozy bungalow or a crowded city flat, every woman can understand the handicap of poor health. The woman in moderate circumstances suffers more, of course, than her well-to-do friend because she cannot afford to hire help.

In spite of her efforts, her house begins to look neglected. Her children say, "Mother is so cross."

Eagerly she listens when a neighbor tells her of other women who found the road to health and happiness.

Health! That's the answer to so many of our problems. Without health, a woman cannot make her home the happy haven she dreams of.

Mrs. Goldie Shoup of May View, Illinois, is one of the many women who have improved their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She was in a run down condition which caused her much unhappiness.

Mrs. Shoup says, "I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I think it is the most wonderful medicine I ever tried." She declares that she is now in better health than ever before.

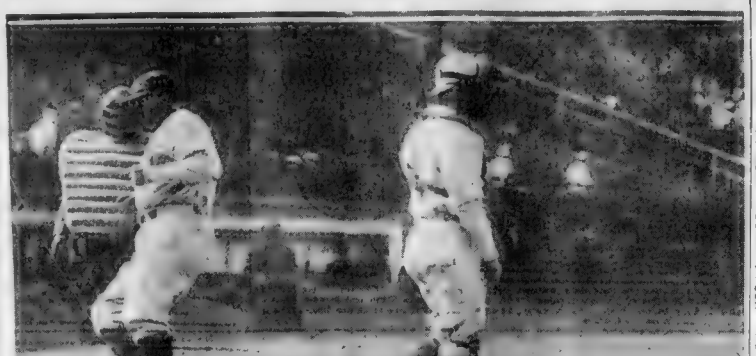
BABE RUTH SCORES FIRST RUN OF GAME



Babe Ruth was the first man to cross the platter in today's game. The score occurred in the second inning. After the Bambino had walked and reached third on a sacrifice, he was brought home when Dugan singled.

Who Is This Player?

Now that the baseball season is on, the Boston Evening American is going to give everyone an opportunity to see the local baseball clubs in action free. A few minutes' effort in naming well known stars whose pictures will appear in the Boston Evening American Sport Page each day, is the only condition.

Player No. 1— is a veteran at the game and plays for one of the local big league clubs. He has been playing major league ball for eight years or more, hits well around the .300 class, while his fielding is equally as good as any of the top notchers in the business.

The four fans who identify the twenty pictures which will constitute the contest will receive season passes. Two will be to Fenway Park, the home of the Red Sox, and two more for Braves Field. The season ticket will admit the winners to all of the remaining games of the 1926 season.

Then there will be fifteen passes to the Red Sox park and a like number to Braves Field.

Do not send in answers until the finish of the contest. At the conclusion you will be asked to write a letter, limited to 100 words, telling which of the players used was your favorite and why.

In the event of ties all ties will receive equal consideration.

All answers including the 100 word letter must be in the hands of the Boston Contest Editor by 12 p. m. May 8. Winners will be announced on May 12.

Print name of player so it can be read plainly.

BRAVES AID TWILIGHT BALL IN DORCHESTER

Judge Fuchs of the Braves has secured his support to Manager Joe Kendrick of the Dorchester Twilight League team. Fuchs believes that a strong twilight league in Dorchester will increase interest in baseball and that the Tribe will eventually receive some benefit from this new interest.

Kendrick will reveal his plans for the season at a ball to be staged by the Dorchester Twilight team at Roomfield Hall, Dorchester, on Monday evening, April 26. Judge Fuchs and members of the Braves will be present as well as Mayor Nichols and other public officials.

Incidentally it looks as though Dorchester would be represented by a tandem team.

B. C. GETS POLE IN PENN TWO-MILE RELAY

Philadelphia, April 14 (A.P.).—Followers of collegiate track sports were speculating today on the chances of their favorite team to win in the annual University of Pennsylvania relay carnival as they glanced over the positions awarded at the draws last yesterday.

The carnival, at Franklin Field April 23 and 24, will be attended by teams representing colleges and preparatory and high schools from nearly every section of the country. The Pacific coast will be represented by Occidental College of Los Angeles.

Boston College drew the pole in the two-mile race, which George Townsend won last year broke the world's record for the event, is not entered. Notre Dame drew third position and Ohio State eighth.

Furman College, from the South, drew the pole in the half-mile college relay, with Chicago second, Holy Cross, one of the favorites for this title, drew tenth. Occidental College is in fifth place.

CHET TURNER TO JOIN PHILLY ROWING CLUB

Toronto, April 14 (A.P.)—Chester Turner, rated by the American Association of Oarsmen as the fifth best sculler in America, is leaving today for Philadelphia. His departure is considered a big loss to Canadian oarsmen. Turner has been one of the Toronto Argonaut Rowing Club stars of several seasons.

Johnson Had to 'Come Through' For Boy

WASHINGTON, April 14 (A.P.).—Walter Johnson couldn't lose yesterday's season opener against the Athletics for he had promised 9-year-old Edwin Marshall of Springfield, Ill., he'd "come through."

Edwin wrote a long way to see his idol pitch. He had earned the trip by writing the best essay on his favorite ball player, Johnson. And when the youngster was escorted to the plate by Vice-President Dawes in the third inning of the game to present a silver loving cup to Johnson, he implored the famous hurler to "come through" on his day of days.

Walter promised he'd "pitch his best to win," and the old master "came through," hurling a brilliant game for 15 innings for his team and for the boy.

BROWN AND BALDI TO BATTLE AT SALEM

Six bouts will be staged at the Salem A. A. on Friday night under the direction of Jimmy Medeiros.

Headline the bill will be K. O. Brown, the Fall River featherweight, who has been coming along hand some lately, and Louis Baldi of East Boston, victor over Henry Ford and others, a very promising boy. Leo Kelly of Ireland, the bantam star of Norman Hurst's stable, will take on Harry Roberts of the North End in another eight.

The other bouts will bring together Shadow Bowden of Boston vs. Ginger Fullerton, East Boston, eight rounds; Red Sadoski, Salem, vs. Joey Holland, Beverly, six; Jimmy Caples, Salem, vs. Young Doherty, Boston, six, and a six rounder to be announced today.

SOMERVILLE AND WINCHESTER TO OPEN SEASON

By EDDIE DONDERO.

"Play ball!"

Coming fresh from the lips of umpires who have long waited an opportunity to shout this tune, those words will be echoed on the schoolboy baseball orchards today.

Eddie Dondero

The curtain goes up featuring the official opening of the outdoor season, which offers nine attractions, each being par excellence. Decked out in brand new spring wearing apparel, Greater Boston's fandom will twist its way through turnstiles which have become rusty due to idleness.

Attendance records mean very little today; the simple fact that the menu is attractive probably will mean that some 15,000 spectators will turn out if weather conditions are satisfactory. Through the long stretches of the Winter the youthful ball hawks have prepared to meet the occasion.

Leading the parade is the Somerville-Winchester fray at Pi boy Field and that's sufficient. Last year, with Danny McFayden and Dinty Hogan, the Suburban leaguers were invincible, but there isn't a single veteran in the opening lineup, said Coach Charles Dickerman.

Captain "Red" Aylesbury, Tom McGovern, Cy Sullivan, Watson and Mickey Morris are possibilities who are to be tested today. Merlin, still do the flinging for Somerville. Aylesbury, the hot corner performer, might be found camping on the bench owing to a sore arm which he developed while training seriously.

Coach Tom Hines at Brookline Hich is handicapped by the scarcity of proficient moundsmen, but the Wealthy Towners are favored over Brighton, which rivals. This contest promises to be hotly contested, as the Brighton club is a whole lot stronger than most experts have figured them.

TOMMY LOUGHRAN INVADES HEAVYWEIGHT DIVISION

CARP NEXT TO BATTLE PHILLY LAD

Kirby Finds the Quaker Too Classy in the Arena Bout; Weigand Reveals Class

By JACK CONWAY.

Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia fistic luminary, announced today through Manager Jim Smith that he will invade the heavyweight division. Loughran is already matched to quarrel with Georges Carpentier in Philadelphia early in June.

Jack Conway

"After Loughran gets through with Carpentier," said Smith, "I shall be prepared to match him for a tussle with Jack Sharkey in Boston. Tommy weighed 173 pounds for his winning bout with Tom Kirby and he can easily put on a couple of more pounds so that he will be heavy enough to clash with a heavyweight under the rules of the Massachusetts Boxing Commission.

"I realize Sharkey has beaten most of the best heavyweights in the country, but I feel that Lough ran carries too many guns for him. In the event Pat McCarthy should win over Sharkey at the Arena on next Monday night, Loughran will be prepared to take on the Jim MacDonald entry.

DEMPSEY ON SKIDS.

"With Jack Dempsey on the toboggan, the big interest is centred on the heavyweights. That's why I am so anxious to get Tunney on for matches with the big fellows."

As for Kirby, he was outclassed in his tussle with Loughran.

Kirby was going backwards during most of the tussle. He made a couple of flashes, but they were feeble attempts to win favor with the crowd.

The match should never have been made. It was a case of where Kirby was sent out of his class. Tom, for the time being, should restrict his efforts to the second and third-raters. He hasn't had enough seasoning to step into first-class company.

Art Weigand of Buffalo won over Battling Thomas of this city in the semi-final of eight rounds. It was the best bout of the show. Weigand is a ring sharpshooter. Boxing with his right foot and right mitt extended, he shoots a mean sock.

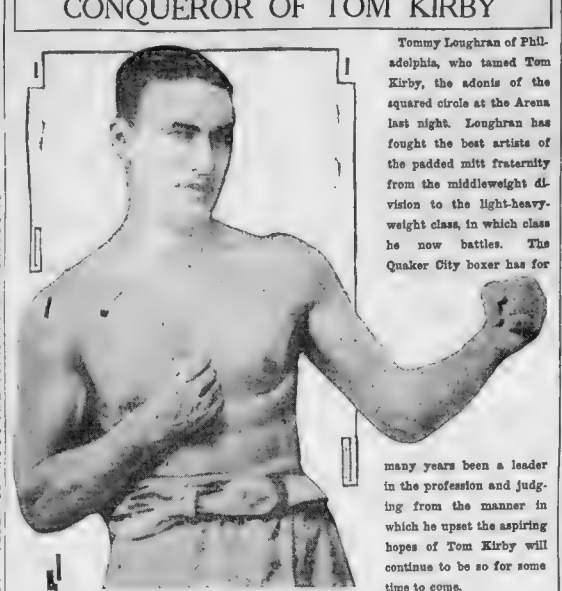
CANASOTA BOB WINS.

Canasota Bob, Syracuse welterweight, lived up to all the fine things that have been written about his combative qualities. He easily won over Jimmy McGonagle of Waymouth in a punching duel. It seems that punching is Bob's favorite pastime and so he was just as much at home at this racket as Babe Ruth is out at the baseball orchard.

Jimmy Madden of Roxbury won a close decision over Rocky Stone of Roxbury in another eight-round setto.

Ralph Granara of the North End outscored Harry Roberts of the West End in a four-session affair.

CONQUEROR OF TOM KIRBY



Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia, who tamed Tom Kirby, the adonis of the squared circle at the Arena last night. Loughran has fought the best artists of the padded mitt fraternity from the middleweight division to the light-heavyweight class, in which class he now battles. The Quaker City boxer has for many years been a leader in the profession and judging from the manner in which he upset the aspiring hopes of Tom Kirby will continue to be so for some time to come.

CHICAGO VOTES TO LEGALIZE FISTICUFFS

Chicago, Ill. April 14 (I. N. S.).—Chicago will have legalized boxing just as soon as Governor Len Small appoints the state boxing commission, following the pressage by heavy majorities in yesterday's primary of the State boxing bill carried in Chicago—the only city voting on it—by 5 to 1, incomplete returns today indicate. The appointment of the commission and the perfecting of its organization is expected to take at least two months.

Until the passage of the present bill, prize fighting in Chicago had been outlawed for 20 years. Prominent features of the new bill are these:

Boxing will be under the supervision of a commission of three members, and a secretary, appointed by the Governor.

No bout shall exceed ten rounds. Champions will be compelled to defend their titles in decision affairs.

The commission shall regulate the prices to all shows.

All promoters must be residents of the state for at least three years, prior to application for license.

FRUZETTI TO BOX FOR RUSSELL MACK

Jimmy Fruzetti, New England's premier lightweight who has been on the shelf for the past nine months with a bad hand is ready and fit to start in training again and willing to battle any lightweight in the country.

Fruzetti has signed a three year contract with Russell Mack, brother of Eddie Mack, to battle under his colors for the next three seasons in the boxing game.

Kearns Boosts Dorval as Great Fighter

By SAM HALL

New York, April 14.—The arrival of Jack Kearns from California stirred things up a bit pugilistically today. Kearns had with him Napoleon Jack Dorval.

Kearns, while he can't convince anybody he has a great fighter until the fighter has shown something, did convince everybody he talked to that he really believes in his blond athlete. Dorval has a cotton-colored thatch that he nods to everything Kearns says in his favor, which is plenty.

"I am here to get Walker good and ready for that Pete Latzo fight in Scranton," said Kearns, "and to make some matches for Dorval.

"Inside of a few weeks I will have Dorval fighting regularly in this State and neighboring ones. It has been my ambition since Dempsey stopped fighting to get the next heavyweight champion. I think I have him. Dorval will prove his worth shortly."

HOREMANS-LEEMPUT MATCH ENDS TODAY

Edward Horemans of Belgium, former world champion, and Marcel Leemput, his young fellow-countryman, are scheduled to complete their series of exhibition matches in 18.2 balkline billiards at the Twentieth Century billiard room, 58 Hawley street, this afternoon and evening.

Before the fifth block, which opens this afternoon, the former champion had amassed a forbidding point total. Horemans never has played better billiards in Boston than he did yesterday afternoon when he ran out the 300-point string in four innings and unleashed a cluster of 174 which was studded with masses and marked by superb control. The former champion kept the youth to 87 points while he was amassing 600 in yesterday's play. He won the afternoon block, 300 to 29, and the evening engagement, 300 to 89.

Spring Practice for B. U. Grid Men

Coach Reggie Brown, newly appointed mentor at B. U., has decided to issue a call for a Spring football practice on May 1.

"This will be the first season in which the Terriers will have undergone Spring practice, but the early scheduling of the opening game next Fall, with Bowdoin on September 25, will make practice sessions in the Fall short and snappy.

Student enthusiasm over the selection of Brown, Ed Robinson, and Hilary Mahaney as the coaching staff is so great that many men who have not been out for the sport plan to do so this Spring, and a big squad is expected when the first call comes.

Spring practice, in cleated shoes but not in full togs, will be held at the University field, Bay State road, but next Fall it is expected that both this field and Fenway Park will be in use.

YOUTHS STAR ON LOCAL LINKS

By BILL GRIMES.

Annually the importance of competition for the younger generation of golfers is becoming more firmly established in the minds of those who have the best interests of the game at heart.

One of the best stimulators of interest among the younger golfers is the annual caddy championship, which was conceived by William F. Garrison a few years ago. The ages of the contestants in this tournament range from 10 to 16 and the interest which these lads display, while fighting for the championship, is as keen as that shown by their older brothers in any State or National classic.

Another wonderful producer of budding golfers is the Massachusetts Junior Championship tourney. As far as the metropolitan district is concerned, there is little difference between those trained in by the juniors and those of the seniors.

Since 1914, when he won the United States open championship at The Country Club, Francis Ouimet has been rightly recognized as the leading Bay State golfer. He has won the championship of the State more times than any other player, Jesse Guilford is the runner up to Francis and this pair of Woodlanders are easily the outstanding stars in Massachusetts.

The reign of Ouimet and Guilford has been going on for years. And like wine, they both appear to improve with age. But the time is coming when they must step down to make way for the coming generation.

New Orleans, La., April 14 (A. P.)—With bouts at Memphis and other cities cancelled, Rocky Kansas, light weight champion, in company with his manager, Danny Rogers, left here last night for New York, where Kansas will be placed in care of a physician. Kansas, Rogers announced yesterday, has a sprained ankle, which he sustained in the fourth round of his ten round go here Monday night with Moran. Moran won a newspaper decision.

HOFF TO VAULT AT KANSAS RELAYS

Lawrence, Kan., April 14 (A.P.).—Charles Hoff of Norway, world's indoor pole vault record holder, will try for a new outdoor mark at the Kansas relays here next Saturday.

Hoff's latest indoor record was made Friday at Chicago, when he cleared the bar at 13 feet 8¼ inches. This was 2¼ inches below his outdoor altitude of 13 feet 9¾ inches, established July 27, 1923.

Teams from 49 universities and colleges and many high schools will compete in the relays, the entries including Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, Michigan, Illinois and Northwestern of the big ten.

CONGRESSMEN RENEW BASEBALL TILT

Washington, April 14 (A.P.).—Political issues won't count when Democratic and Republican members of Congress go to bat on May 1 to fight it out on the baseball diamond in their first game since 1918.

JOHN D. TAKES FLING AT SPORTS BOOSTERS

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 14 (A.P.).—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., does not understand baseball and does not play golf. Mr. Rockefeller, here in the interests of the Phi Beta Kappa $1,000,000 endowment fund, said he knew "nothing to baseball" because "I never go to the games." Horseback riding and setback tennis furnish his chief diversions, he said. He explored the materialism of the day and said he felt the need of the age was spiritual.

FIGHTS I CAN'T FORGET

by—TAD—America's Greatest Boxing Authority

This is the nineteenth of a series of famous fights covered by Tad, the greatest sporting cartoonist and leading authority on pugilism in this country. Tad has covered all the big fights held in this country for the past thirty years. In this review of prominent battles he will tell not alone of championships, but will refreshen the memories of many fans who have witnessed thrilling contests in the smaller clubs.

Nelson Beat McGovern

It was at Philadelphia on the night of March 14, 1906, that Terry McGovern, the toughest and hardest hitting little fellow of that time, failed to even make an impression on the sturdy Dane, Battling Nelson, from Hegewisch.

The bout was a very unsatisfactory one, and went the full limit of six rounds. Terry stayed the limit by his ring generalship and clinching tactics. It was thought that the Terrible One would wade into the Dane and fight him punch for punch. It was a sad thought.

Terry did the same as the others had done while facing this demon of the lightweight division. For one or two rounds he tried to slug with him—he took a few wallops and roughed it.

Terry figured his chances then and from the third round on contented himself with holding, backing away and trying to stall the vicious plunges of Nelson.

The bell clanged and they went at it like two tigers. Both missed lefts and went into a clinch. McGovern was walloping away with his left at Nelson's body, and the latter was sticking his right into Terry's anatomy as fast and as hard as McGovern. It was an awfully tiresome thing at the start.

After three rounds of even mixing the start of the fourth came very near ending the fight. Nelson was a bit wild as he rushed at Terry and plugging with both fists as fast and as hard as he could.

Terry backed away from the mix, and as he did stopped a left flush on the jaw that made his knees sag and his head rock. He started to fall, grabbing the rope, and then, with that support, sent his left in the direction of Nelson, who came on like an express train. He missed and Nelson went at him like a lion. He belted him across the ring, sending Terry's head from side to side and curling him up like a shaving with stinging rights to the body.

Terry's eyes were sticking out of his head, his mouth was open gasping for breath and Nelson, gritting his teeth, whaled away without mercy. Terry fell against the ropes, all in, unable to push back and barely strong enough to keep on his feet. The bell rang and Terry fell into his chair exhausted. No one expected him to last another round.

In the fifth, however, Terry showed another flash of old form, but it was short lived. He mixed it for a second, but the tide of battle was not going his way. His strength was gone, his punch was weak and his legs sagged under him. He backed away from the onslaught, trying his best to clinch and to keep the cruel blows from his jaw.

It looked as though Terry was done for again, but when Nelson got in to finish the job Terry swung again and then held. He held on like grim death, too, and as the bell rang, dragged himself to his corner, the Dane taking his on the run.

The sixth and last round was another fierce one. Nelson caught Terry right off the reel and swung left and right to the head. Terry's legs spread and he held out his arms, grabbing the Dane, while his seconds yelled, "Hang on! Hold him! Stick it out!"

Terry braced up for a moment later and let fly a left to Nelson's face. It stopped the Dane a second and it seemed as though Terry's last punch was out. He was forced backward along the ropes and went to his knees as he missed a right for Nelson's head. He was up in a jiffy, but unable to sting, and held on harder than ever. Nelson pushed one hand away and then the other. Terry's head was bobbing backward and forward, but each time as he staggered he threw out his hands and held on.

Nelson shoved and pushed and punched. There was blood all over Terry's mouth and nose and some trickled down Nelson's.

He batted Terry from his corner along the ropes over to Terry's, and then the gong sounded, but Nelson, not hearing it, sent in three or four more before the referee pulled them apart.

PICTURES OF SOX GAME ARE NOW ON SCREEN

Motion pictures of the opening of the baseball season and the game between Lee Fohl's Red Sox and the rejuvenated Yankees are being shown by International Newsreel at leading theaters and will continue throughout the week.

The pictures show the prominent stars of both teams and some of the most sensational plays as well as all the exciting incidents in connection with the opening game.

Last Night's Bouts

BUDGET SOLVES HOME PROBLEMS

Boston Evening American Offers Aid to Housewives in Planning Expenditures of Income

By MARTHA LEE
NUMBER TWENTY-SIX.

"How can I start a budget when payments on old debts don't leave a cent for anything but barest necessities?"

This is one of the most frequent and heartbreaking questions from the would-be budgeter.

Cheer up! Debts must be paid, of course, but you have got to live, too. Budget the debts along with the rest of the income and even though it may take a whole year, eventually you'll be free of the burden.

Many people who do not keep a budget but oft paying anything on a bill because they never seem able to spare a substantial sum and they hesitate to offer two or three dollars.

No matter who your creditor is, if you will say to him, "I've keeping my household book on the budget system and can promise you $5 each week (or more if budget can take care of a larger payment)," I am sure you will find him glad to make arrangement.

If you have contracted for payments on installments so large that they eat up all your "savings" budget and encroach on clothes and food, go frankly to the credit manager of the store, explain your situation and ten chances to one he will be glad to arrange for smaller payments spread over a longer period of time. Doctors and dentists, even the highest in their profession—are glad to help you out by accepting small amounts regularly on their bills. Of course, where there are debts—the percentages for the "savings" budget from which these debts are to be paid, must be just as large as is possible. Decide on your shelter, food, clothing and other allotments, however, have it all down in black and white—and then stick to it. When trying to pay back bills figure approximately 18 per cent. of your total income for shelter, including business carfares, 25 per cent. for food, 10 per cent. for clothing, 15 per cent. for operating (heat and light), 17 per cent. for savings (including weekly payments on back bills) and 15 per cent. for "personal" or miscellaneous—including all other expenses.

And people we're on the end subject of debts, why not ask yourself if you're one of the people who plan to spend their money twice? Of course no one could advise you to hoard your money but in planning to spending, remember you can spend it only once.

Don't contract to buy something for $5.00 today and something else with the same $5.00 tomorrow. This is just an invitation for the debt burden to settle on you.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Home Budget Editor—How can I budget $35 a week, holding to and storing days taken out? We are terribly in debt, rent $14, telephone $2.25 a month, insurance $1.90 a week. We owe $200 besides one month back rent. 2 adults, 2 children.
MRS. G. D. F.

Your rent is high—it should not be over $12.00 weekly, less if possible. (I'm figuring on a $32 weekly budget). Food $15, clothing $3.50, operating, heat and light $3.50; savings $4.50 (including weekly insurance of $1.90). $10 weekly on the $200 debt, and $3.00 weekly on back rent until paid). Personal or misc'l'aneous, $3.50, including all other expenses. I'd use a public phone when necessary, at least till the debts are paid. Couldn't you get a small loan on your insurance to catch up the back rent? If you must continue to pay $3.00 weekly for rent, you'll have to pare an extra dollar off food and operating.

Our next letter is from Mrs. D. F. K., wife of a sailor whose pay is $45 a month. Rent $20 for two furnished rooms. Insurance $2.40 a month, garage rent $4.00. Food is bought at commissary store and charged by the month. They have a Ford sedan. She says, "We have only been married a short while and would like to save for a rainy day."

How can I be such a kill joy as to suggest that a Ford on $19.10 a week is going to eat up every one of the dimes that ought to be going for the "rainy day"? This is the best I can do. Shelter, $4; $5, food (since I assume husband gets most of his meals from Uncle Sam); $3.50, clothes (for friend wife); $1, savings; $5, personal or miscellaneous, including the garage and other expenses.

Mrs. F. R. F.—Budget the entire $36—not just household allowance. Husband's spending money must come out of "personal" or miscellaneous. It should be figured thusly: Shelter, $7.20, including husband's business carfares; food, $9; clothing $5.85; operating (heat and light) $5.40; savings, $3.85 (Christmas Club and insurance); personal, $5.20 (including garage rent); all expenses of the car, husband's and your own speaking money, doctors and dentists, church, newspapers, recreation. It's easy to see where the pinch comes. Perhaps you can pare enough off clothing and operating to make up the "personal" shortage and extra rent money.

Mrs. E. M. S. It is hard to estimate your exact income at $30 a week and a $4-ton truck bringing in $75 to $100 weekly during the summer. $40 weekly is my best judgment of your weekly income. This should be apportioned, shelter, $11, including business carfares; food $12, clothing $7, operating (heat and light) $5.60, savings $2.50, personal, including payments on the truck and all other expenses, $12. It's really hard to budget for you without more exact figures.

Dear Mrs. F. M.—Your rent is too high to start with. Seven dollars a week should cover it and all business carfares. With six in the family you'll have to have $18 at least for food. Until the bills are paid you'll have to cut and contrive clothing at $3 a week. Operating (gas and coal and 60 cents laundry) you say is $2.25. Xmas club and insurance, under "savings," totals $2.25 more, so you have $2.50 left for all your other expenses. And nothing for bills. Can't you find a rent for $5 a week, giving $2 towards back bills, for the present at least—or get a small loan on your insurance?

Dear Home Budget Editor—I have three children. My husband does not live at home but pays our rent and gives us $15 a week. I work myself, earn $25 a week but would like to save this or buy clothes for myself and the children. How can I live on the $15? Insurance $1.50 a week, light 75c gas (for heat) $1.75.
M. B.

I am afraid you'll have to dip in to the $25 for extras. The $15 would be divided, $10.50 for food $2.50 for operating (gas and electric light), $1.50 savings (insurance). "Personal" expenses and clothing will have to come out of your $25. Answers to the other questions are going by mail.

M. A. L.—Surely your mother must realize you can't afford to pay her $10 rent weekly out of a $20-a week salary and furnish your own heat and electricity besides. What is there left for food, clothes, etc., after you pay $11.70 a month on furniture and the upkeep of a car? Is it any wonder "there's not a cent in the bank? And a baby expected in September? Your rent should not be over $4 a week. Food, including milk, $2 (that's a study in itself!) clothes, $7, operating (gas and coal) $3, savings $1, and $3.50 personal money for all the rest of the expense. It looks as if hubby should be keeping an eye open for a better job.

"The Temptress" -:- By Ibanez

FROM one side, the Marquis watched the Rito by-play, his thoughts more on the control of his friend than on the persuasive man.

She was still filled with thoughts of Robledo on the following day when a parcel arrived bearing the card of Fonteroy, the middle-aged banker whom she had persuaded to give Torre Blanca a position as director of one of his companies. Smitten by her allure, the banker since had showered her with presents, far beyond his means. . . and now started when she read on the cards the terse words:

"Bankrupt. Good-bye."

For a moment, she stood dazed, puzzled, endeavoring to fathom the meaning of the brief message. She had not opened the parcel but she did so now, revealing a thin circlet of Roman gold—a slave bracelet. A knock came at her door but before she could open it the Marquis burst in, his face gray and haggard.

"Torre, what is it—"

"Fonteroy," he cried brokenly. "He is a suicide; the company broken. The creditors would have me arrested for signing false reports and Robledo says I must run away to Patagonia with him."

The Marquise started. Robledo . . . Patagonia. His land of wilderness and wildness.

"Then we must go," she thrilled. But he held up his hand, stammering:

"No. Robledo will not have us both go. You must stay."

She stared at him for a second, then rang for her maid.

"I am going," she announced coolly.

When the Arragoness laborers who had emigrated to Argentina carrying along that most cherished of their possessions, the guitar with which they accompany the couplets they improvise, saw her flit by on her pony, they made a song about "The Flower of Black River." And at once the name was caught up by the whole countryside.

As a matter of fact her name was Celinda and she was the only daughter of the rancher, Rojas. She was but in her eighteen years, but agile and energetic as a thoroughbred colt.

In boy's clothes, mounted on a broncho, circling a lasso above her head, she could ride down a wild mare or young steer with a much skill as one of her father's peons.

Carlos Rojas, as everyone in the county knew, belonged to an old Buenos Aires family. In his youth he had led an extravagant life in several of the European capitals. Buenos Aires proved just as costly. Little by little the fortune he had inherited from his father dwindled away. When ruin was upon him, his wife died.

It became necessary then for Rojas to give up the old farm in Buenos Aires province and go to Rio Negro as a speculation, and to this property he now betook himself.

The buildings on his ranch were of a modest sort. The rooms did not contain much in the way of furniture. Don Carlos waited in one for Celinda.

The lunch hour had passed, and still Celinda had not come in. Her father every now and then looked impatiently out of the door. He had no fears whatever on her account.

"No one is going to take any chances with Celinda," her father used to say proudly. "She's a better shot with the revolver than I am. My girl is as good as any man!"

In one of his pauses at the door he caught sight of her, a cloud of dust rapidly. Mile Celinda dismounted from her horse and came to greet her father. But the latter, after kissing her cheek, held her away from him, and looked severely at her.

"Haven't I told you that I didn't want to see you wear men's clothes? Trousers are for men, just as skirts are for women.

Celinda received her father's reproof with lowered eyes, and an air of graceful hypocrisy. She promised to dress as he required.

As they lunched Don Carlos inquired of his daughter if she had been near the camp at the dam. How was the work getting on?

The hope, which daily grew brighter, of becoming rich again, had, of late, changed Rojas from the gloomy and discouraged man he had been for so many years, into one capable now of smiling once more. If the engineers of the Argentine government succeeded in damming the Rio Negro, the canals even then under construction, according to the plans of a fellow named Robledo and his partner, would irrigate the lands that these men had bought, and since those lands adjoined his own, he, too, would benefit from the irrigation machine, and the value of his property would go up by leaps and bounds.

But the discourse of Don Rojas on riches was cut short by the arrival of a fat mulatto woman.

She made a rush for Celinda, kissed her, and even spattered some of her tears over her:

"My pretty little one! My baby, my own little Senorita!"

When Celinda first came to the ranch the mulatto had been hired to take care of her, and it had been a real hardship for the woman to leave the girl. But she had never been able to get on with Don Carlos.

When she had finished exclaiming over Celinda, the mulatto looked at Don Carlos with an indignation that was comical in effect.

"Well, since the boss and I can't get along together, I'm going to the dam to keep house for the Italian contractor."

The afternoon was half gone when Don Carlos saw a horse led in. He smiled as he noticed that the animal bore a side saddle. In a moment Celinda appeared wearing a black riding skirt. She tossed her father a kiss from the end of her riding whip, and then, without setting foot in the stirrup or accepting a helping hand, with one leap she landed on the saddle, and the horse started off at a full gallop toward the river.

The Making of a Husband

By Ann Lisle

PAT leaned down and stared at me gravely. Then he threw back his head with the old familiar gesture, lifting his artistic, long-fingered hand and smoothing back his wavy crest of gray hair, as he said:

"'Tis right I was when I called you the contrary one. 'Tis all at sixes and sevens who are, Alanna. 'Tis myself and my friendship you are pushing away with the wrong end-to—the words that are after being all different from what there is in your heart—for your friends, for your husband, for all who waver and stray and need you. But 'tis ugly words you have that don't hide the truth from me now—but must be after hurting sometimes when most you want to heal. Is life making you twisted, Alanna?"

"How, 'twisted,'" I asked.

"So your heart is leaning one way and your mind another. Is it after wondering if it is soft you are. And then your head waggles your tongue around to make up for your heart, and the whole of you feel the hardest you are speaking. All contrariwise—like women so often are after seeing when 'tis shy they are at heart."

"You know women, don't you?" I asked bitterly.

"There you go again! Sarcastic this time! Why are you after making yourself so different from what it is the Great Maker wants you to be?" Pat asked gently, reverently.

"It's men," I explained slowly. "Men like you with your philanderings and your lovable weaknesses and your expectation of forgiveness, no matter what you do. You make us—contrary. We must have some sort of armor—"

"And its yourself won't be flirting a bit," Pat suggested persuasively.

"You mean I might give as good as I get?" I protested.

"It has been known to work miracles," Pat said soberly.

"Are you and Jeanie all right?" I asked almost before I knew the words had formulated themselves.

"We've both been after straying a bit," he said. "We've both been after forgiving a bit."

"You don't put Jeanie in the same class with yourself? She hasn't done anything wrong!"

"Don't be taking so much credit for that!"

Pat laughed as he spoke, but I refused to join in his mirth.

"'Tis a prig you are, Alanna," he said suddenly.

"Perhaps. If being a prig means having a few old-fashioned standards!"

"'Twas Father Abraham himself had his love for Hagar, though 'twas Sarah was his good wife," Pat said solemnly. "And 'twas Sarah was willing so long as Hagar knew her place. 'Tis merely because you were after taking about old-fashioned standards that I am mentioning those ladies and that gentleman who was after being well known about six-thousand years ago. Now what are you going to be answering to that, Alanna?"

"So you justify your standards!" I cried. "You think women ought to put up tamely with things like your flirtation with pony, dead Brooke De Courcey, and with the sort of thing Jim seems bound to go in for every Spring? You think we ought to shut our eyes or make the best of it or forgive or some thing?"

"What do you think, Alanna? What would you be paying for happiness?"

"Did Jim send you to ask me that?" I demanded furiously.

A Talk to the Would-Be Plump

GREETINGS, everybody!

Until the few lines about adding extra pounds to one's weight through malt taken in milk shakes. I never realized that there are so many misguided people in the world as want to drape some extra avoirdupois tissues on their frames.

Chocolate adds greatly to the value of these egg nogs and makes them more palatable. Coffee syrup may also be used. The chocolate syrup can be purchased either in the form of a thick sauce or thin syrup or you can make the syrup yourself

Here are the proportions for a plain chocolate milk shake:

CHOCOLATE MILK SHAKE
2 tablespoons chocolate syrup.
1 cup milk.
½ teaspoon vanilla.

Place all ingredients in a tightly covered container; shake well, pour over crushed ice and serve immediately.

CHOCOLATE SYRUP

Boil together 1 cup of instant chocolate (already sweetened) in ½ cup of boiling water. Mix the chocolate and the water gradually until smooth. Bring to a boil. Boil 1 minute, cool, pour into a glass jar. Cover and keep in a cool place until needed.

You can make a stomach ache out of your milk shake by this recipe:

CHOCOLATE PEPPERMINT MILK SHAKE.
2 tablespoons chocolate syrup.
1 cup milk.
3 drops oil of peppermint.

Place all the ingredients in a tightly covered container, shake well and pour over crushed ice. Serve immediately.

For a real chocolate egg and milk try this:

CHOCOLATE EGG AND MILK
2 tablespoons instant chocolate.
1 egg, separated.
1 teaspoon sugar.
1 cup milk.

Mix the chocolate and sugar together. Beat the yolk of egg and add the chocolate; beat until well blended. Add the milk, beat well and pour the mixture into a glass containing crushed ice. Make a meringue by beating the egg white very stiff; fold in 1 teaspoon of powdered sugar and pile the meringue lightly on top of the chilled milk mixture.

Think of it!
Your week's wash worth more than $100

Yet for just 4 CENTS you can give all your clothes the protection you give fine fabrics . . . . . .

ALL clothes are costly nowadays. You pay more than ever before for your husband's shirts, your own housedresses, the children's clothes. Even sheets and towels are not cheap now.

Take a minute to figure the value of one week's laundry—you'll find it worth at least $100. Probably much more!

You simply can't afford to risk any of your clothes these days—nor any of your plainest household things. They cost too much! You can't entrust them any more to the ravages of ordinary laundry soap!

For just 4¢ more than you pay for ordinary soap you use Lux—launder your clothes the saving, protecting, fine-fabric way! Lux lengthens the life of every piece—stops the old wash-day wear and tear—saves dollars!

Every trace of dust and dirt vanishes in the rich, creamy Lux suds. White pieces come out sparkling clean, colored ones bright, unfaded! And—so important—Lux saves your hands, too!

For your protection Lux is sold only in the familiar blue packages plainly marked LUX. Two sizes—enough in the big new one for two average washings.

P. S. Is hard water it actually costs less to use Lux because it takes so little to get rich, cleansing suds. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

A PIRATE of HEARTS

The Thrilling Love Story of a Boston Girl and the Husband Who Strayed

CHAPTER XLIII.

(Copyright, 1918, Johnson Features, Inc.)

SYLVIA'S first thought was: "Heavens! I mustn't let Ranny come and find me here, talking to Peter!"

For his unreasonable jealousy of Peter made her feel guilty if she even saw Peter, nowadays—much less spoke to him!

"How are you, and where have you been keeping yourself lately? I haven't seen you for perfect ages," she said to him.

"Oh, I've been hanging around, as usual," he said in his slow, soft voice. "What are you doing down here tonight, all by yourself?"

"That's what I was going to ask you." Sylvia's voice was as gay as a brook again. "Myself, I'm waiting for Ranny. We're going to have dinner here."

"I wonder where Ranny can be?" Sylvia looked down at her plain little wrist watch. "He's late!" Just then she saw his blond head above the heads of a group of people. She took an easier step toward him, and then stopped.

For he was not alone! With him was a small sympathetic girl, with roving dark eyes set in her small brown face.

"Who's the girl with him?" Sylvia heard Peter say in her ear, with a kind of growl as he saw Elsie Leopold.

"That's Miss Leopold, a cousin of Sally King," she had just time to tell him, when the pair were upon them.

Elsie Leopold shook hands with Sylvia as if they were the very best friends in the world, and she smiled coyly up at Peter when she was introduced to him. But her smile turned off his calm, like arrows on a steel shield. He barely saw it. It seemed

"Oh, I'm so tired!" she said to Sylvia, when they were waiting for the head waiter. "Ranny and I have been trying to find a shop for my birthday this blessed afternoon. I'm just dying to drop."

Peter Steps In

Sylvia's eyes suddenly fixed on the wears that she wore on her coat—

dolphs with two or three tiny turtles in the centre of them, violets and pansies and heaven knows what during the enchanted ta of their engagement Ranny had given her a bouquet to Sylvia ad told her that her eyes were re blue than the violets, and that a white gardenia always made a ck of Sylvia's satiny, white skin. "They're your flowers!" he had l me a dozen times in the days on he loved her. "They belong to Sylvia."

And now he was giving them—he as giving her flowers—to Elsie eopold!

Ranny saw her looking at them, d he had the grace to flush and ve a half ashamed grin. Then he turned away from the hurt that was in her lovely eyes.

Sylvia turned to Peter, and just brushed his coat sleeve with her fin ers. There was an appeal in that ouch, and Peter felt it "Won't you come and have dinner with us, too, Peter?" she asked. We'd love to have him, wouldn't we, Ranny?

Ranny had no choice but to say Yes. He looked sulky and angry, but Sylvia didn't care.

She knew that she just could have sat there at the table, sharing Ranny with this girl who wore his flowers on her breast! Her eyes said "Thank you" to Peter, as the four of them sat down at their table.

She looked at him again, and another thought slipped into her mind—how good and dependable he was! She felt, as she sat there beside him, that no matter what trouble she might ever be in, he would be able to help her, somehow! There was an air of quiet power about him, of reliability.

"If Peter married a girl," she thought bitterly, "he wouldn't be falling in love with every fresh face that he saw. He wouldn't be around buying flowers for strange girls when his wife had to give music lessons."

Then she put that thought out of her mind. It wasn't loyal to Ranny to compare him to Peter Wilk, for, after all, Peter wasn't the sort of man that women liked, and Ranny

Women Pursued

Women didn't run after Peter the way they ran after Ranny, with his blue eyes, his charming, reckless smile, and his figure of a Greek god. Women didn't try to tempt Peter, as Elsie Leopold was tempting Ranny, even now, under the very eyes of his wife!

Sylvia looked at her narrowly. She was smiling up at him as she ran a lipstick over her full, pursed up lips. "Did I get too much of it on?" she asked him, making a round rose of her mouth.

He answered her in a low tone but Sylvia heard what he said. "Yes, you did! If we were alone, I'd kiss some of it off for you!" Then they both laughed.

For the first time Sylvia began to wonder why Ranny had asked her to come down to dinner with them that night. It was plain that they didn't need anyone else. They were a perfect case of "Two's company, three's a crowd!"

Ranny looked up from his soup, suddenly, and spoke to her across the table. "By the way, Sylvy, I saw your Aunt Agony this afternoon," he said.

Elsie Leopold tittered. "Yes, we both saw her," she chuckled, "and she saw us! That was the point—that she saw us! Honestly, she nearly stared a hole through us, too!"

Despite the dull ache in her heart, Sylvia managed to smile brightly at her, as she went on with her story.

"You see, Ranny's birthday being me collect some things to put in my shop—curtains and hook rugs and such truck. He has such wonderful taste, you know."

Sylvia felt the arrows. When, she wondered, had Ranny ever shown any taste about curtains and rugs? All he had ever done to decorate The Nest was to hang his wrinkled ties on his mirror and to strew his papers and cigar ashes all over the living room.

Aunty's Joshed

"And your Aunt Agony came along while we were looking in at a window full of paintings up here on Newbury street," Elsie went on, joyously. "She was in a fiver with another old fright—"

"That was probably my aunt," Miss Sarah Wilk. She has a new van," Peter cut in quietly, "and she and Miss Agony are very good friends."

Elsie Leopold blinked at him for a minute. But she finished her story just the same.

"Well, you should have seen the two old things rubber at us! They almost fell out of the car, didn't they, Ranny?" she asked.

He didn't answer at once, and she nudged him playfully with her elbow.

"They certainly did," he answered, then lifted his eyes to his wife's face. "You don't mind if I have to get started with her little shop, do you?" he asked as carelessly as if he had not asked her if he might smoke.

"Why, I guess not," she faltered.

Of course, she did mind. She minded very much, and Ranny knew it. He knew that she was wildly jealous of him and his new affair with the Elsie Leopold girl.

"Why, of course she doesn't mind!" Elsie was saying now, flicking the gray ash from the tip of her cigaret. "Women don't put their husbands under lock and key these days the way they used to."

Then she looked across the table at Sylvia's pale, unsmiling face.

"Your aunt will probably call you up first thing in the morning and tell you that your husband is running around with a wicked siren!" she said with a horrid little laugh. "The older generation doesn't understand us at all. They're all so straight-laced and"—she groped for a word—"and so dumb!"

She took the cigaret out of her mouth and leaned toward Ranny, her imitation pearl beads swinging coyly with the suggestive sway of her body. She laid one of her little hands on his hands, patting them.

"But we understand each other, don't we, old kid?" she asked him. "I understand you, at least—whether or you get me or not! You're not quite so smart as you think you are!"

Sylvia looked at the pair of them for a long moment as they looked at each other. Then she quietly bestowed together her handbag and her gloves, and stood up, looking down with their beautifully mended tips.

She knew now why Ranny had asked her to come down, how he have dinner with him and Elsie Leopold—simply because Aunt Agony would tell Sylvia about seeing him with Elsie!

And not only that, but she might tell his own father about it. She was quite capable of doing it, as Ranny very well knew. He had been mortally afraid of Aunt Agony and her tongue ever since she threatened to tell his father that Sylvia was giving music lessons.

"He's using me to protect himself in Old [illegible] of Sylvia summed it up. [illegible] 'and I won't let him [illegible] straw!'

THEY don't like their necks washed, or behind their ears, any more than other babies do. All week long they're in deep, dark mischief through the streets of the splendid, the streets of the weary, the streets of the drab-colored, and the lanes of the lucky in the country—and so their mother puts it off till Saturday—"country style."

And then they put the kettle on till it simmers gently, and the lady who comes out of the sea—she is mother of all the littles loves that ever shutten, and has no more skin on him—and then she hangs 'em up to dry by their ones more heavenly white wings. So goes Saturday in Loveland.

Queen Victoria Deals With Harassing Problems of Affairs of State

Queen thanks Lord Granville for his letter.

She quite approves of the advice he gave the Prince of Wales respecting the Literary Fund dinner, and she is at a loss to understand how any true friend of our son could advise him to preside at any such dinner; for he is far too young and inexperienced to take part in such Societies. Some years hence this might be different, but, till a few years have passed, the Queen thinks he should upon no account be put at the head of any of those Societies or Commissions, or preside at any of those scientific proceedings, in which his beloved great father took so prominent a part. It would not be at all fair by the Prince of Wales.

With respect to his attendances in the House of Lords, the Queen thinks, that, whenever there is anything of interest or importance going on, and the Prince of Wales is in town, he should attend; but she is clearly of opinion that he should not do so regularly, for many reasons, which she can state verbally to Lord Granville.

The Prince of Wales will not be staying in town again till after his marriage, else the Queen would have been glad if Lord Granville had asked a small party of distinguished men to meet him.

At Tomb Every Day

The Queen thinks (and the Prince of Wales quite agrees in this) that with the exception of Lord Granville, Lord Palmerston, and possibly Lord Derby (leader of the Opposition and former Prime Minister) and the three or four only great houses in London, Westminster House, Spencer House, Apsley House, the Prince and future Princess of Wales should not go out to dinners and parties, and not to all these the same year.

Queen Victoria to the King of the Belgians

WINDSOR CASTLE,
13th February, 1863

Dearest Uncle—You say that work does me good; but the contrary is the fact with me, as I have to do it alone and my Doctors are constantly urging upon me rest. My work and my worries are so totally different to any one else's; ordinary mechanical work may be good for people in great distress, but not constant anxiety, responsibility, and interruptions of every kind, where at every turn the heart is crushed and the wound is probed!

I feel too visibly how much less able for work I am than I was. I was very unwell from agitation and overwork yesterday, added to my dreadful unbounded grief.

Oh! for an hour only with my dearliest, for every day to the beloved Mausoleum, where all is peace and quiet! Oh, for me to be there soon!

Queen Victoria to Earl Granville

WINDSOR CASTLE, 23d Feb., 1863—The Queen is terribly alarmed at the French language and proposals respecting Poland, and thinks we must, on NO account, let ourselves be dragged in to what may be a war with Germany! The Queen shudders at the very thought of what, if we are not very careful, and very guarded in our expressions to France, we may find ourselves plunged into!

The proposals of France would inevitably bring us into collision with Prussia and we should have a French Army on the Rhine before we could turn round.

The Queen writes this to Lord Granville because Lord Palmerston held language upon the subject on Saturday which much alarmed her. She relies upon the Cabinet preventing any imprudent step.

Ah, now how dreadful it is to feel how alone and unprotected we are without the beloved Prince to guide and help and protect the poor Queen. He would have written one of those many wise, admirable memorandums which Lord Granville knows, so often quoted great evils. The Queen, however, knows what he would and did feel and how he always dreaded this Polish question becoming some day very serious.

She has written strongly to Lord Russell in this sense, but she relies on Lord Granville and the Cabinet supporting her, for she has never been more alarmed about anything since God took her whole life and happiness, her support and her protection, from her, than she is now.

Sympathy With Poles

Earl Granville to Queen Victoria

24th Feb. 1863.—Lord Granville presents his humble duty to your Majesty, and begs to thank your Majesty for your kind letter of yesterday. He is much grieved to hear that Lord Palmerston held language which alarmed your Majesty about Poland and Prussia.

In the Cabinet on Saturday, Lord Russell appeared more anxious to move than Lord Palmerston; the latter held cautious language, and agreed that the French policy was dictated by a desire to conciliate Catholic support, and probably by ulterior plans of aggrandisement.

The situation is embarrassing if Lord Palmerston and Lord Russell go warmly into a course of interference.

The popular feeling is sure to be roused in favor of the Poles; the speech of Lord Ellenborough was cheered on both sides of the House of Lords, the most conservative body in England. The conduct of the Russian government is suspicious, and exposes the peace of Europe to the greatest dangers.

Your Majesty's government ought to be extremely prudent. I believe the majority are inclined to be so, and Lord Granville ventures to hope that your Majesty will continue to insist on every step being submitted to the Cabinet before it is finally adopted.

Alarmed Over "Affie"

Queen Victoria to the King of the Belgians

WINDSOR CASTLE,
25th February, 1863

Beloved Uncle—I am thankful to say our dear invalid at Malta goes on favorably, and they hope to land him today. But it is just the same dread (typhoid) which took our Angel from us, and you may imagine my—indeed our—anguish!

I live all thro' again, and with much strangely mixed feelings. She relies upon the Cabinet preventing any imprudent step.

Ah, now how dreadful it is to feel how alone and unprotected we are without the beloved Prince to guide and help and protect the poor Queen. He would have written one of those many wise, admirable memorandums which Lord Granville knows, so often quoted great evils. The Queen, however, knows what he would and did feel and how he always dreaded this Polish question becoming some day very serious.

She has written strongly to Lord Russell in this sense, but she relies on Lord Granville and the Cabinet supporting her, for she has never been more alarmed about anything since God took her whole life and happiness, her support and her protection, from her, than she is now.

Alarmed Over "Affie"

Queen Victoria to the King of the Belgians

WINDSOR CASTLE,
25th February, 1863

Beloved Uncle—I am thankful to say our dear invalid at Malta goes on favorably, and they hope to land him today. But it is just the same dread (typhoid) which took our Angel from us, and you may imagine my—indeed our—anguish!

I live all thro' again, and with much strangely mixed feelings. I feel, while I pray so ardently that God may spare our darling boy, so like his beloved father, so clever and talented, and so excessively amiable, I can't imagine how any one can recover from this dire fever if he didn't, and if dear Affie (as, underfire, we may confidently trust he will) should recover, I think my own darling must return, too! Oh! how troubles and anxieties persecute us, since that dreadful day when God took all from me!

Dear Affie has been charmed by having his commission given to him, which preyed upon him, as he had worked so hard for months and fell ill the very day the examination was to have come on!

Vicky arrived safely yesterday, and is looking really very pretty, so young and fresh and full of fun; but look at her, thinking how pleased her precious Papa would have been, and how happy, how proud we might have been to have our two married daughters and our little grandson (Prince William of Prussia, afterward the German Emperor William II.) with us, and to have received this lovely Bride! Now all, all is spoilt, a heavy black cloud overhangs everything now, and turns pleasure into woe.

I hope you were pleased with your little great-grandnephew? He is a clever, dear, good little child, the great favorite of my beloved Angel. The sight of all these is very, very trying to me.

Greece is still Kingless!

But Poland alarms me much more, as France wants to draw us into a dangerous move, the results of which may be war on the Rhine. I shall prevent this by all means in my power, but still it is very dangerous ground, and Prussia has made such a mess! She is really doing all to ruin herself. Vicky is in despair over your devoted and wretched niece,

V. R.

Earl Granville to Queen Victoria

LONDON, 25th Feb., 1863.—Lord Granville presents his humble duty to your Majesty, and begs to inform your Majesty of what passed today.

The Cabinet decided to omit everything that savored of a demand from Prussia runs the Rio Grande parallel with the track. A few yards away a strong "dog" kangaroo with a good running jump might clear that river and land in Mexico. What a change in one jump. Will Uncle Sam ever make the jump? Probably not. Far better be friends; treat each other fairly; help with capital and leadership, and both nations will grow rich and good, side by side, powerful to protect this continent.

DEL RIO brings a look of sad reminiscence to one "boy" on the dining car. That's where Chinese cross the river sometimes and offer $500 to any honest American that will deliver them, safe, in Chicago or San Francisco. There's a lot of empty room above each end of the dining car, you are told in a whisper, space about ten feet long, room for several Chinamen. Once in a while the boys would smuggle in a few, at night, letting them in through the top of the car.

Five hundred dollars a head is pretty big money, and a couple more Chinese laundrymen couldn't do much harm. But once the boys forgot two of them or got scared or something and the poor fellows died up there. They were afraid to holler. So that all stopped. Perhaps that "boy" had some imagination. Automobiles, freight cars and even flying machines still bring in some of the Asiatics, it is said.

IF YOU WAIT over a train, you can get off at El Paso, run over to the old Apache trail and see the cliff dwellings, just as Coronado found them, nearly four hundred years ago, when exploring Arizona. He was looking for "The seven cities of Cibola." The oldest Indians could not tell him anything about these dwellings in the rock; their ancestors had no traditions about them.

'Twas the old story, one tribe of men trying to kill off another tribe, thus stimulating human ingenuity and thought. If no one had ever tried to kill us, we humans might be now where we were two thousand years ago. Like the South Sea Islanders, we live in cliff dwellings ourselves with elevators and steam heat. This writer has just built one cliff dwelling, forty-two stories high, at Fifty-seventh street and Park avenue in New York City. That's the highest apartment house so far, but the future will see them five and ten times as high, with landing places for helicopter flying machines, and elevators starting down from the roof, instead of up from the ground.

THE FRENCH say: "Plus ca change plus c'est la meme chose," "The more it changes the more it is the same thing," to skip the cliff dwellings and look out of the window. Men that own cattle along the tracks rejoice, for more rain has fallen this season than in any year for 80 years. How many millions of cattle will these lands feed, in place of today's comparatively small herds, when water unlimited is added to this soil, marvelously rich in lime? The good will say, "Men will all be vegetarians by that time," but perhaps not. Oxen have time to digest grass, men have not.

HERE IS Pecos River, and if you cross one of the highest railroad bridges in the world. A deep canyon has been worn through the hard rock by water rushing for hundreds of centuries. One of the crew looks down, "to see if the old man is still there," and reports, "Yes, he's there all right; I wonder what he does down there."

Some of the angels, flying over, might ask that question as they look down at us.

The old man's little place, far down by the steep rock wall where bends the swift river, is neatly kept, freshly painted. He has a sundial made of white stones in his front yard, flowers planted. Perhaps he's as happy as some men in a cabaret at four in the morning. And he has a real occupation as part of the Southern Pacific system. His job is to watch that towering bridge, with the train creeping over it so slowly. He makes other men safe.

NEAR THE RIM of Pecos Canyon a tall Texan sits erect on a white horse, watching a band of sheep, patiently nibbling, changing thin grass to mutton. "Sheep herder," says the young commercial traveler, who goes over this road every ninety days. "What in Heaven's name does he do with himself, what pleasure can he get out of life?"

Nothing but the whole earth spread out before him, the sky above him, sun and stars, and changing clouds, and leisure to think. Perhaps he gets out of life nearly as much as does the commercial traveler, who complains that the food is a bad trip, "because married men in the tobacco factories make as little as ten dollars a week. How can they raise families on that, buy shoes for their children?" Also, of course, how can they buy the traveling man's goods.

WHAT THE SHEEP HERDER gets out of life, with only the earth and sky, no jazz band to entertain him, depends on what he has in his brain. Make your plans to travel West this season, and see what you get out of three thousand miles of wonderful earth's surface.

Remember that this is the season to visit California, greatest Summer climate and Summer resort on earth, and very cheap round-trip tickets in Summer. Don't let it be said of you: "Where he was born, there he stayed; never had the energy to move." This writer is crossing the continent for the fifth time in the last three months and has not really seen it yet, COME WEST.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

As we advance in life, we learn the limits of our abilities.

* * *

Most people would succeed in small things if they were not troubled with great ambitions.

* * *

The conscious utterance of thought by speech or action, to any end, is art.

* * *

We all love beauty at first sight and we all cease to love it, if it is not accompanied by amiable qualities.

* * *

People are never so near playing the fool as when they think themselves wise.

* * *

Bear in mind that by pleasing men it becomes possible to accomplish something.

* * *

By agreement small things grow, by discord great things go to pieces.

* * *

Who lives without folly is not so wise as he thinks.

DAILY SHORT STORY

"Cast your lynx like eyes on that, Carthew," requested Seymour Graeme, globe-trotter and adventurer. "Read it, ponder it, analyze it. Your are better at puzzles than I. It beats me why I should be picked on for what looks like a crude attempt at blackmail. And how modest they are. Fifty thousand drachmas! I could not raise the half of it in the time allotted. Tomorrow night is the limit."

Carthew read the threatening letter in a careless, cursory way; but never did eye or quiver did he miss.

"You are quite right, Graeme," said Carthew. His voice was, like himself, mildly ministerial. "Whoever wrote this scarcely expects you to go to Long Island, to a deserted barn, before 8 tomorrow night. But they do intent to kill you. Yes. I have no hesitation in saying they do plan to kill you."

"But, why? Who is anxious to destroy me? And why the pretence of blackmail?"

"Perhaps to shift suspicion. What are you going to do? There has been a considerable epidemic of blackmail lately, but somehow . . ."

"What is there to do? Pack a gun and keep my eyes wide-open."

"Um! Not so good," commented Carthew. "Let's see your trick safe-tray!" He held out a cigarette-stub for disposal.

"Where. . ." Graeme looked petulantly away from the desk. "Oh, there it is! Confound it, Sharma," he called to his Hindu servant. "Why can't you put things where they're needed. You black-skinned apology for a nigger I'll. . . ."

Carthew interposed. "Easy, Graeme. Go gently." He had seen the Hindu's eyes glitter like a python's.

Sharma set the ash-receiver on the desk near Carthew. It was a bizarre figure of a fat, green-robed mandarin through whose great, bulbous, upturned nose one shot matches, ashes and cigar ends into the hollow belly of the image.

"That's the oddest thing," said Carthew, taking the mandarin in his hand and . unscrewing the head. "You have water in the base of it?"

"Yes, to extinguish the butts. It is very neat." Graeme was proud of this curio.

At seven the next evening Carthew was again in Graeme's study.

"No fresh news of the blackmailers?" asked Carthew.

"Nope. Hope they had a pleasant wait in the rain. I'm ready for them." He patted a gun at his hip.

Carthew nodded indifferently. "Oh, I've come without cigarettes," he complained, feeling through his pockets. "You have some?"

"Of course. Sharma! Cigarettes!" Graeme pounded on the desk. "Where is that dirty nigger?"

"You're a bit rough on Sharma," protested Carthew.

The Hindu appeared with the cigarettes. Carthew had a match already lighted. It burned low before he could put it to his smoke. He motioned to drop the blazing brand into the mandarin's nose. He blew it out instead. From the corner of his eye he had seen the Hindu jump back nervously.

The Hindu went out quickly.

"Oh! him back," said Carthew, "Find something to talk to him about."

Graeme looked surprised. He recalled the servant. Carthew lighted his fag and pulled his chair closer to the desk. He smoked viciously, burning the cigarette to a butt in a few deep pulls.

"Anyone been here this afternoon?" asked Graeme. He had intended to question Sharma on that topic.

"One man . . who came to look at the telephone," replied Sharma. "A dark, foreign man."

"And you left him here alone? You black s . . . Hey, where are you going?"

Sharma been watching Carthew with frightened eyes. The clergyman was holding the glowing stub ready to drop it into the gaping nostril. Sharma, trembled, ready to run. His face turned sickly green.

"Shall I drop it, Sharma?" asked Carthew.

"No, shhh! No. . . .

THE MANDARIN'S NOSE

By Merlyn Swift

Graeme, seizing the idol.

"What the. . ." shouted Graeme, seizing the idol.

Carthew took it from him and removed the head. He looked inside and glanced up with consummate satisfaction

"Enough high-explosive T.N.T. or nitro or some other to blow us and the mandarin all to little bits, my dear Graeme," he announced as gently as though he were giving the Sunday-text. "Very clever, Sharma. Even to the blackmail and the telephone-fixer. I suppose he put it there. But you hate your master so much that it shows in your eyes. I noticed that when he scolded you last night. You should control your nerves better.

"Even though you are ill-treated, your idea of revenge is exaggerated. I should say that a little experience of our western prisons would correct that. But I leave your fate to Graeme.

"You can go to the Hindu devil, Sharma," said Graeme unkindly enough. "But get out of this country and stay out. As a servant, you are a clever murderer."

"Yes," declared Bunny. "It is a little tail. And although some people have a great admiration for long tails, and many animals are very proud of theirs, I'm just as well satisfied not to have the worry and responsibility of always having a puff of a tail two or three times to see if it were quite safe

BOSTON RADIO AMERICAN

VOICING THE GREAT DEMOCRACY OF THE AIR

SAMUEL CURTIS, JR., Radio Editor

BIG FIGHT OVER COPYRIGHT LAW

Although it may never affect the listening public financially, the row in the other between the authors, composers and publishers and the broadcasters regarding the use of copyright compositions, is very important. Upon it the future of broadcasting depends to a considerable extent if there is to be any stability and regularity to it.

Both the composers and the owners of broadcasting stations seem desirous of reaching an agreement, but although the Joint Session and House Patent Committees held hearings for five days, adjournment was taken Friday without reaching even the semblance of an agreement. Further hearings are scheduled to open April 19th at which it is expected most opposed to the Dill-Vestal copyright bills will be heard.

WITNESSES FAVOR BILLS.

During the recent hearings most of the witnesses favor the bills under consideration, desiring to stop the warfare between the composers and the broadcasting stations by the enactment of legislation standardizing broadcast fees or at least making radio broadcasting subject to the copyright laws in a manner similar to the control of copyright music phonographic reproduction.

The only opposed to the measure was Gene Buck, president of the American Society of Authors, Composers and Publishers, who claimed that Congress should not undertake price fixing of anything, although he was desirous of a solution to the existing broadcast problem. He believes the proposed bills would complicate the rights of the composers by permitting all stations to broadcast a selection licensed to a single station, which would soon destroy the value.

NEED COPYRIGHT MUSIC.

On the other hand, the broadcasters, admitting that they must have copyright music, say they are willing to pay fully and fairly for it, but they also want some standardized system of payment and a guarantee of permanency in their licenses. They object to the withdrawal of numbers at will by the composers and urge that Congress apply the phonographic reproduction paragraph in the copyright law to radio, establishing a fair rate for reproduction.

The efforts of the broadcasters to interest radio fans in their proposals brought floods of communications to the members of the Joint committee, including statements from broadcasting stations that the composers' society was trying to increase broadcast rates materially in relicensing stations.

Broadcast Changes

No new broadcast stations were licensed to operate even experimentally by the Radio Department of Commerce in March, and only two were licensed, leaving 530 active stations listed. The stations which dropped out of the aerial race were KFVR, at Denver, Colo., owned by Eugene Rossi, a fifty-watter, and KFXM, Beaumont, Tex., the Neches Electric Co.'s station, rated at 10 watts.

Other changes announced by the Departmental radio officials follow: KFVN, location changed from Wilcox to Fairmont, Minn., KFVS, at Cape Girardeau, Mo., owner, Hirsch Battery and Radio Co.; KOP, Portland, Oregon, now listed as KGW, owned by the Oregonian, 319 m, 940 Kcs. KTAB, Oakland, Cal., now owned by Associated Broadcasting Co., Inc., Camden, N. J., call changed to WCAM, WGBI, Scranton, Pa., now owned by Scranton Times Broadcasting Inc. (Frank S. Megargee.) WGHX, Orono, Me., power 500; 234.2 m.; 1280 Kcs. WHK, Cleveland, O., now located at 1226 Huron road, Cleve., O. WIBo, Elizabeth, N. J., now controlled owned by Lt. Thomas F. Hunter. WJAK, Kokomo, Ind., now owned by Kokomo Tribune. WJBO, Gastonia, N.C., call now WBNC; located at Greensboro, N. C., owner Wayne W. Nelson.

For the Notebook

Switches on a set should always be kept clean.

Do not tune a set by guessing; plan your kind of station.

A large "B" battery may last three or six months or even a year.

The plate voltage is too high when a soft bluish glow appears in a tube.

A "C" battery reduces the drain on "B" batteries in any set using audio frequency amplification.

The life of a "B" battery depends on the number of hours used, the number of times it is used and the way the grid return is connected.

500 WATT STATION MOVED TO MADISON SQ. GARDEN

The Radio Engineering station at Richmond Hill, N. Y., known as WHAP, operated at 491.5 meters, New York city, where it is installed in the Madison Square Garden. It will probably be authorized to operate temporarily under the call letters WMSG, with 500 watts, 212.6 meters or 1410 Kcs. Chief Engineer Dellinger, when interference will be taken and if he is found to interfere seriously with existing local stations the temporary license will be recalled.

Straight Line Effect

The effect produced by the use of the straight line frequency condenser is that all stations are found equally along the dial. This accomplished by designing the shape of the condenser plates according to a formula involving a series of sines and cosines.

BOOTLEG WAVES BRING CHAOS

Possibly there was once only one bootlegger, but who can count them now? If the first bootleggers of the ether are successful in usurping channels assigned to other stations, many will follow and then chaos.

Stations WJAZ and KWKH are operating on a radio channel not assigned to them but allocated to Canada. How many more offenders there are, is difficult to determine, but the Department of Commerce inspectors are listening in and logging all radio "booting" stations.

Much depends upon the decision of the Federal Judge in Chicago handling the WJAZ test case, which is expected soon. If the decision is favorable to the Department of Commerce, upholding its right to designate specific wave channels to stations on that order in the future may be maintained, the situation may not get any worse, but if an adverse decision is handed down, dire results are expected.

Many disgruntled station owners will probably start using such channels as they think most desirable, regardless of the Department's assignments or regulations.

TERRIBLE INTERFERENCE.

This would soon create terrible interference among the existing stations. Such a move would undoubtedly inspire many of the five hundred odd stations whose applications for licenses are held up because of the lack of open broadcasting channels, to turn on their transmitters and flirt with any wave they see fit. Such a condition would end broadcast reception for some time to come. About half of the applicant stations are already equipped with apparatus. It is seen that the situation is threatening, unless Congress in the next few weeks enacts controlling legislation.

Without the backing of the Courts or Congress, Secretary Hoover fails to see how he could control the situation, if the stations started running wild.

BEDLAM IN THE AIR.

There would be bedlam in the air, without a semblance of aerial traffic control and some 700 stations would interfere with each other, on the same wave channels so that we could get nothing but whistles and howls as they clashed all over the country.

This result would be practically the same even if only part of them broke away from their assigned wave spaces in between them. Without a system, there would be dozens of broadcasting on the same wave length and those located within about 1000 hundred miles of each other would interfere, preventing the reception of anything except local broadcasts. We would then have the choice of tuning to it or picking our own stations.

STATEMENT OF THE OWNERSHIP, MANAGEMENT, CIRCULATION, ETC., REQUIRED BY THE ACT OF CONGRESS OF AUGUST 24, 1912, of Boston American, published daily at Hearst Building, 959 Boston, Mass., for April 1, 1926.

State of Massachusetts, County of Suffolk, ss.

Before me, a Notary Public in and for the State and county aforesaid, personally appeared Roger D. Shaw, who, having been duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that he is the publisher of the Boston American and that the following is to the best of his knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership, management (and if a daily paper, the circulation), etc., of the aforesaid publication for the date shown in the above caption, required by the act of August 24, 1912, embodied in section 443, Postal Laws and Regulations, printed on the reverse of this form, to wit:

1. That the names and addresses of the publisher, editor, managing editor, and business manager are: Publisher, Roger D. Shaw, Winthrop Square, Boston, Mass.

Editor, James Williams, Jr., Winthrop Square, Boston, Mass.

Managing Editor, Edward R. Mahoney, Winthrop Square, Boston, Mass.

Business Manager, Roger D. Shaw, Winthrop Square, Boston, Mass.

2. That the owner is: (If the publication is owned by an individual his name and address, or if owned by a firm, the name and address of each, should be given; if the publication is owned by a corporation the name of the corporation and the names and addresses of the stockholders owning or holding one per cent. or more of total amount of stock should be given.)

New England Newspaper Publishing Co., Winthrop Square, Boston, Mass.

Star Co., 25 Broadway, New York, New York.

William Randolph Hearst, New York City, New York.

3. That the known bondholders, mortgagees and other security holders owning or holding one per cent. or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages, or other securities are: (If there are none, so state.) None.

4. That the two paragraphs next above, giving the names of the owners, stockholders, and security holders, if any, contain not only the list of stockholders and security holders as they appear upon the books of the company but also, in cases where the stockholder or security holder appears upon the books of the company as trustee or in any other fiduciary relation, the name of the person or corporation for whom such trustee is acting, with the statement of the circumstances and conditions under which stockholders and security holders who do not appear upon the books of the company as trustees, hold stock and securities in a capacity other than that of a bona fide owner; and this affiant has no reason to believe that any other person, association, or corporation has any interest direct or indirect in the said stock, bonds, or other securities than as so stated by him.

5. That the average number of copies of each issue of this publication sold or distributed, through the mails or otherwise, to paid subscribers during the six months preceding the date shown above is 243,721. (This information is required from daily publications only.)

EDGAR D. SHAW, Publisher.

Sworn and subscribed before me this 20th day of April, 1926.
JOHN J. MALONEY, Notary Public.

Is Your Life Insured?

An Intelligence Test

At the beginning of this century only two Americans in fifteen carried life insurance, the value of the insurance amounting to $111 for each inhabitant.

Today nearly every other American is insured, and the amount carried is SIX TIMES as much as in 1920.

What is more, the writing of policies in both number and amounts is increasing more rapidly each year, there being no point of saturation.

Theoretically, you can save, invest and protect your dependents as well by yourself as with the aid of an insurance company—if you have pluck, brains AND luck.

Practically there is no better sheet anchor to windward than the kept-up policy.

It gives you the incentive to save, it puts you on your pride to do it; and the habit, once formed, grows.

It is a reserve you won't be inclined to abuse, and it is always back of you in an emergency.

The young man's best start is to join this growing army of the thrifty.

Luther Burbank

Perseverance Made Him

The world is quick to appreciate the contributor of a new or improved food. It learned of its debt to Luther Burbank early and now it honors his memory.

He had the imagination of a genius and the patience of a saint. In addition he knew the value of hard work.

We sometimes think that success springs full-born into the arms of such men as he, but that is rarely so. Burbank made more than 100,000 plant experiments, some lasting a quarter of a century, to get 385 results which he regarded as of value to mankind.

That slow progress would have discouraged most folk. He persevered. And when he scored a triumph, he simply put it to work without thought of personal profit.

He was a lovable as well as a wondrously useful man. His life was as full of kindness as of achievement. He was even a philosopher in a way. But his greatest lesson for the youth who in coming ages will read eagerly of his work is the lesson of persistence and patience.

The man who can leave the world better for his having been in it needs no other monument.

Arizonan's Fine Mesa

Mr. Schroeder of Wyoming Is Proud of His Children.

Americans are proud boosters, a good thing for the country. J. H. Schroeder of Cheyenne, Wyo., like millions of other Americans, believes that his is the BEST STATE, his city the BEST CITY and, especially, HIS CHILDREN, the best children. Mr. Schroeder read a paragraph from the "Today" column, published in the Boston Evening American, as follows:

Helen Wills is particularly interesting as a California product. California children grow in strength all year round. In less favored States they grow for six months, then stop growing, waiting for the sun to come out again.

After reading that paragraph Mr. Schroeder wants it understood that California children may be all very well in their way, but for the VERY FINEST Americans, destined to solve all the world's future problems, you must look to Wyoming. He writes: "Why, man, you do not even seem to know that 'It's easy to be happy if you live in Wyoming.'"

Schroeder has two children, Catharine, 7½ years old; John Henry, Jr., 4½ years. Both are fine samples of childhood, he says, rugged, healthy and therefore handsome. With such children it is "easy to be happy" anywhere, if you are able to take good care of them, feed them well, give them a start in life, not TOO MUCH money, and bring them up with a good American public school education, trained and ready to deal with the world.

It is a good thing for the United States that so many millions of Americans believe that THEIR particular spot in the country, and especially their particular children, are the finest in the whole land. That belief makes America prosper.

The same mail that brings Mr. Schroeder's letter and the picture of his children brought the following letter from Senator Mulford Winsor, president of the Arizona State Senate:

Sir: I know California is a wonderful State. I know, also, that there are many admirable places in this great country of ours that the people ought to know about. But there is only one Yuma mesa, on the banks of the much-discussed Colorado River. You ought to see it, and you ought to tell the folks back in the Ice-bound East about it. It will astonish you and profit them. Let us know when you can give us a day.

Very sincerely yours,
MULFORD WINSOR.

Every State has its citizens that can AND WILL prove to you that theirs is the BEST State. Arizona, about which Senator Winsor writes, with its wealth developed and undeveloped, is undoubtedly one of the greatest and richest States in this Union.

A man proud of his children takes GOOD CARE of his children. The progress and salvation of the human race are due to the devotion of mothers—every mother seeing in her new-born child the WONDER OF THE WORLD, the hope of humanity. The man proud of his children helps and works for his children. The man proud of his State, city, profession and friends, helps them all.

Fortunately for the United States, this is a nation of BOOSTERS. That American word may be sneered at by some, but next to LIBERTY it is the best and most useful word in American speech.

Signs of Growth

Be Glad You Live in the United States

Twenty-three thousand million dollars is what the Pennsylvania Railroad is worth. At the end of the Civil War our debt was about that size. It was so large that few believed it could ever be paid.

The road's operating revenue last year, $673,136,962, was more than a year's appropriations of the "Billion-Dollar Congress." Now, of course, we have three billion yearly appropriations.

Truly, the country and its railroads are growing.

Boston Newspaper Circulations

Twice a year—in April and October—the important newspapers of the country report their paid circulation. These reports go to two authorities—to the Federal government, which requires, by law, the total figures of paid circulation; and to the Audit Bureau of Circulations, an organization whose membership comprises publications, merchants, manufacturers and advertising agencies. This organization requires a detailed statement and employs competent auditors to verify or correct the reported figures.

The figures from the reports of the Boston newspapers to the government are now just available. They cover the six months period ending March 31.

Readers of the Boston Evening American and of the papers associated with it in ownership and management—the Boston Daily Advertiser and the Boston Sunday Advertiser—will find satisfaction in a number of facts that these figures demonstrate:

The circulation leadership of the Boston Evening American in the evening field is increased.

The Daily Advertiser has strengthened its position as the newspaper of second largest circulation in the morning field.

The Boston Evening American and the Daily Advertiser together sell each day more copies than any single Boston newspaper on weekdays or any other combination of morning and evening papers.

The Sunday Advertiser has increased its leadership in the Sunday field and, for a full six months' period, shows an average net paid circulation above 500,000.

For those who have a liking for figures, the government reports for the six months ending March 31, 1926, are as follows (because one Boston newspaper combination does not separate its morning and evening circulation in these reports, it is necessary to quote total figures):

Weekday Circulation—
American-Advertiser	380,947
Second newspaper	377,431
Third newspaper — combination morning and evening	280,159
Fourth newspaper — combination morning and evening	250,459
Fifth newspaper	38,897
Sunday Circulation—
Boston Advertiser	502,565
Second newspaper	349,596
Third newspaper	332,282
Fourth newspaper	124,216

If the question be asked as to more recent circulation than an average for a full six months—if the question be for this year's circulation, for example—the readers of the Boston Evening American, the Daily Advertiser and the Sunday Advertiser will find added reason for satisfaction. The growth of all three newspapers has been even more notable in the past three months and the division into city (thirteen mile radius from Boston City Hall), city and suburban (thirty mile radius from Boston City Hall), and total circulation shows an extremely well-balanced relationship. These figures of net paid circulation are:

Average for three months, January-March, 1926	Total
American	253,699
City	155,526
City and Suburban	191,917
Daily Advertiser	143,009
City	73,945
City and Suburban	89,617
American-Advertiser	396,708
City	229,471
City and Suburban	281,534
Sunday Advertiser	509,688
City	141,427
City and Suburban	212,982
50-mile radius	355,216

This 50-mile circulation is greater than the total circulation of any other Boston Sunday newspaper.

A chief satisfaction—to reader and publisher alike—is that this great circulation growth has resulted wholly from the merits of these publications and is free from schemes and from any artificial stimulation.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

I HAVE a theory. I cannot prove this theory scientifically. Nevertheless, it answers my deepest problems and gives my life an abiding sense of beauty and purpose.

This theory may not do that for you. In fact, it may seem to you a foolish and unjustified flight of imagination. If so, I do not urge you to accept it. Pass on and find the truth in your own way, my friend.

This is my theory.

I believe that behind us all there is a Source of Power. All kinds of power—power for everything we need—strength power, health power, joy power, beauty power, wisdom power, love power, peace power—power beyond our noblest imaginings.

I do not know how this power is assembled at the Source, nor what laws manipulate it, nor whether it has any individuality or consciousness which we would recognize. But I am sure that it exists because I feel it and because I see its constant operation.

Men have given this Source a thousand names. Some call it God—some call it Allah—once men called it Jove and Osiris. I do not think it matters what we call it as long as we feel that it is.

In Central Source

I believe that all human beings depend on this Source for life—as a babe depends on its mother for food. I believe that everything that is vital in our minds or souls or bodies derives its vitality from that Source. I believe we are like individual batteries, which draw our energy from some vast, central dynamo.

I am not speaking of "energy" in a mystical, visionary sense. I mean real, tangible power which produces real, tangible results. The things that make our blood red and our ambitions fiery and our work efficient. Electricity—magnetism—psychic force—the thing, in short, that makes all our wheels go round—that's what I mean by energy.

I believe that energy comes from a Central Source; but there is something very significant and remarkable about the manner of its coming.

I do not believe that we can obtain energy by saying—"God, I need energy." Those gimme prayers seldom get us anywhere. I do not believe we can attain it by reading mystic books or joining cults or wearing funny clothes and eating funny foods or going into any sort of a spiritual tantrum. We can bop ourselves up with a pseudo-vitality in this manner, but we can't obtain the real juice.

I think we can only get the requisite juice for our batteries by going where the juice is being distributed. Where is that?

In and through all the rest of the human mass.

I think that energy pours from the Source into all humanity. We are all conductors. By "all" I mean all. I do not mean only the nice people, the cultured people, the good people, people who talk or think as we do. I mean clean people and dirty people, bright people and stupid people, people in jails and people outside jails, bank presidents and janitors, prima donnas and scavengers, stevedores and evangelists.

"I believe that the 'juice' is to be found in all these people and they all are necessary for the purposes of the mysterious Source of Life. I believe that the only way in which you and I can get in vitalizing touch with that juice is to get in touch with people."

And that is, I think, the inner meaning of the phrase "the brotherhood of man." That's why I think that democracy is more than a political or ethical ideal. I believe it is a necessity—that it is the first and last law of healthy life for both body and soul.

Proved Spiritually

That's my theory. Although I cannot prove it scientifically, I have proved it spiritually to my own satisfaction in countless ways.

I find that the battery of my own energy goes dead if I do not keep in contact with people. It does not matter how many fine books I read, or how noble the thoughts I think, or how exalted my mood, my battery goes dead unless I'm with people. I am sad that has lost its savor. Nor have I ever met anyone who has been able to stay "charged" without contact with people. I know a great many super-humos who cultivate a fine disdain for the "unwashed masses" and who confine their calling list almost exclusively to God. But I have never found that they were of the slightest use to either God or themselves.

Another proof is that I have actually felt myself being vitalized by contact with the energy in other people. I have also felt myself being depleted by the lack of energy in other people. Some people are live batteries. Some are dead batteries. Some give to you. Some take from you. But, on the whole, if you mix around you are vitalized, for if you don't get energy from one person, you do from another.

That's my theory. I see a great deal in it. You may see very little. That's up to you.

RIGHT EDUCATION FOR GIRLS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE Princess Marie du Bourbon has contributed her ideas to the important question of the education of girls.

She says that girls in Spain are usually educated in convents, where they are instructed in religion, besides painting, music, art and all kinds of pretty needlework and other accomplishments.

In other words, she finds, they are trained to be useless young ladies.

It turns out that they are usually disappointed in their husband, of whom they have entertained idealistic dreams. They find out that husbands are but human and it is a shock to them.

She says that convent girls are more qualified to become saints than to engage in the rough and tumble of everyday life which awaits girls.

She advises that girls, even wealthy ones, be taught some kind of work or business to protect them against their constant fate. They should unite, not as in convents to fight against men, but to fight with them to help the family.

Every man who has achieved success desires to leave his women folk well guarded against the slings of an untimely fortune. Most of them carry heavy life insurance. The best kind of life insurance in the world, however, is for a woman to have some kind of calling or trade by which she can support herself.

In the field of business it is not exclusively a man's world any more. Women are entering all classes of professions and many of them have achieved eminent success.

If a woman is properly trained there is no reason why she cannot earn her own living and stand with her feet firmly upon the ground.

Education for girls should not consist in training them merely in the old traditional way, but should equip them for life and assist them to be as resourceful as possible.

GOOD BOOKS PRODUCTIVE OF GOOD THOUGHTS

You sometimes wonder if anyone understands you and again you wonder if you understand yourself.

You are shocked at certain thoughts which come to you at times.

You are relieved when they are driven from your mind and you are thinking along beautiful, more sensible, more elevating lines.

You consider your ancestors and you know that you have found nothing about any of them which is of an alarming sort that might have been handed down to you in this morbid mind trouble which you sometimes have.

You know that you are not cruel, you have never committed a crime, your life has been comparatively clean.

Your parents, grand-parents and great grand-parents were of fine character and reputation.

Then why should such evil thoughts come to you at times?

Well, perhaps you have read books of an evil nature and the crimes are in your sub-conscious thought and finally gain the ascendency.

Bad books are to be condemned for much of the wickedness in the world.

Perhaps it is such reading at some time in your life which is cropping out now to shatter your peace of mind.

Read good books.

Ladies Be Cheerful

Beauty and Youth Will Last, If You Don't Stop THINKING

THIS IS LINA CAVALIERI, WELL-KNOWN GRAND OPERA PRIMA DONNA, HEROINE IN REAL LIFE OF AN AMERICAN MATRIMONIAL FARCE CALLED "WHO'S LOONY NOW?" AT 31 YEARS OF AGE, CAVALIERI IS STILL "MARVELOUSLY BEAUTIFUL."

Take care of your beauty and it will last, dear ladies, young and old. Your eyes will remain bright, teeth shiny, like pearls, hair any color you want, lips like rose leaves, neck like an alabaster column, etc., etc., etc. And here, in Lina Cavalieri, you have the proof of it.

She understands beauty secrets, of which the first is to keep CHEERFUL, the second is to keep physically and morally CLEAN, and third and most important NOT TO STOP THINKING.

When the brain dies youth and beauty die.

The so-called "beauty secrets" are important. If you use powder use the RIGHT kind. There are many WRONG kinds.

Soft creams keep the skin smooth. Many beauty secrets are REAL secrets.

The greatest secret of all is a cheerful spirit in an active mind, both dwelling in a body healthy, well cared for, clean, blood supply kept normal and pure by pure air, plenty of it.

Officially this charming young woman, Cavalieri, is fifty-one years old. Really she MAY be older. She, as prima donna, was playing in Pagliacci, at the Royal Theatre in Lisbon twenty-five years ago. Perhaps her mother never told her how old she really was. You know that when a lady admits fifty-one, especially in professional life, it is just possible that she may be fifty-two or sixty-two.

You who shiver at the thought of old age learn now that it can be postponed.

London's Great Air Port

The British Are USING the Flying Machine Invented by the American Wright Brothers

An air port, not merely PLANNED but actually BUILDING at this moment, is the most important preparedness work of Great Britain. The British got their lesson during the war. They saw women and children of Hull running out and hiding in the fields, shivering in the cold all night, at the sound of a German Zeppelin.

They know that air attack, unless instantly met with a fighting force in the air, would be fatal to any great city, and they MEAN TO BE READY.

In this country, instead of getting ready, our admirable Government is content to put on trial Colonel Mitchell, a man with courage enough to tell the truth about our miserable and incompetently managed aircraft.

Look at this proof of British enterprise and then ask yourself what your country is doing, or, rather, NOT DOING, and also what is the matter with that dearly beloved country of ours.

Are we stuffed so full of the world's gold, so choked with prosperity, that we cannot THINK or look ahead?

Have we lost the enterprise that once distinguished the American people, causing this country to produce the steamboat, flying machine, telephone and to perfect and bring to its highest development the automobile?

What IS the matter with us, anyhow?

If the Government will not build an air port, as it should do, on Governors Island, wiping out the idiotic golf course and polo field with which army men amuse themselves there, then the city of New York should build an air port for itself.

Remember what Lincoln said to the rich New York merchants that went to Washington and demanded a special battleship during the Civil War, to protect New York City from British and other privateers.

President Lincoln listened patiently and then told the New York bankers and others, "Gentlemen, if I were you, and if I had as much money to protect as you saw you have, I WOULD BUILD A BATTLESHIP AND PROTECT MYSELF."

If the Government won't do it the city of New York and other great and rich cities like Boston, Chicago, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Jacksonville, Tampa and dozens of others, ought to tax themselves to build their own air ports and provide their own flying machines.

The right flying machine protection might cost such a city as New York or Boston one hundred millions of dollars.

An attack by air machines, finding a rich city without adequate protection, would cost that city SEVERAL BILLIONS OF DOLLARS IN HALF AN HOUR.
